U.S. Unit Meets First Gas Attack

By PETER ARNETT

SIAGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—An ambush patrol of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division was attacked today by Viet Cong using a nonpoisonous type of tear gas, a spokesman said.

He added that this was the first known firing of gas by the Communists in the Viet Nam war. However, South Vietnamese authorities alleged in September 1965 that the Viet Cong used nausea-inducing gas grenades. The allied forces have used nonlethal types in certain instances for nearly two years.

The Viet Cong attack came in Tay Ninh Province of War Zone C, a battleground area centered 65 miles northwest of Saigon, where Americans have reported more than 800 enemy dead in a week of hard fighting against the Viet Cong's 9th Division. The patrol had settled into its ambush pattern in matted swamp and jungle five miles northeast of Suoi Dau.

No firefight followed and no injuries were reported. The spokesmen said the Americans donned gas masks, which are standard combat equipment, at the explosion of the first grenades. The troops were believed to number about 30.

About 1,200 gas grenades were found among 19,000 grenades uncovered by infantrymen sweeping an enemy regimental command and supply complex Wednesday.

Ground action in the area, however, continued to be light.

The bloody battle in Tay Ninh Province of Zone C pushed the toll of American dead in the war to nearly double the number the week before, the weekly casualty report revealed.

Addition of U.S. nonlethal gas to the allied arsenal in South Viet Nam came to light in March 1965. This created an international controversy in which Communist propagandists still sporadically declare the United States is using "poison gas." U.S. authorities have denied this, and cited field practices as humane.

The first American supplies went to South Viet Nam's armed forces. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara explained they were the same "riot control agents" that police forces use to quell civil disturbances. Citing an instance where gas was used against Viet Cong who took refuge among noncombatant villagers, he said the aim was to save life.

In the initial global repercussions, Secretary of State Dean Rusk denied that the United States was waging gas warfare in Viet Nam. He said non-killing tear and nausea gases would continue to be used as needed to save innocent lives.

Kiesinger Gets Party Nod As Successor to Erhard

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany's dominant Christian Democratic party today chose Kurt Georg Kiesinger, minister - president of Baden - Wurttemberg, as its candidate to succeed Chancellor Ludwig Erhard at the head of the federal government.

On the third and final ballot, Kiesinger won 137 votes, against 81 for Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder and 26 for Rainer Barzel, the party's parliamentary leader.

The decision was taken by the party's membership in the Bundestag.

The candidate must now see if he can win enough votes from other parties to get himself a majority. The Christian Democrats alone are four votes short of the necessary 249 in the Bundestag.

There had been some doubt that Kiesinger, 62, could win the nomination because of his past links with the Nazis, expecially in the light of gains made in the State of Hesse last Sunday by a right-wing party, the National Democrats.

Kiesinger said in a radio broadcast that he would try to deal with both other parties—the Socialists and the Free Democrats -- to get a majority in the Bundestag. He himself is not a member, but a seat can be arranged for him.

He asked to be excused from saying anything about his politican program.

After the Christian Democrats, the Socialists have the largest delegation in the Bundestag, 202 votes. The Free Democrats have 49.

Kiesinger, though widely criticized for his service under the Nazis in World War II, led the count from the beginning. On the first ballot he had 97 votes to Schroeder's 76, with 56 for Brazel. There were also 14 votes for Walter Hallstein, head of the executive commission of the European Common Market.

On the second vote Kiesinger's total rose to 118, with 80 for Schroeder, 42 for Barzel and only three for Hallstein who then dropped out.

Drive Goes Over Half Way Mark

The Sikeston United Fund surpassed the half way mark today, chairman Henry Bussey said.

A total of $17,943.76 is reported collected or pledged. This is more than half of the $33,400 goal.

Bussey said the campaign seems to have gained some impetus during the past week.

It is hoped that we can wrap the drive up by Thanksgiving, he said. The drive was scheduled to end Nov. 8, but only about 40 per cent of the goal had been collected at the time.

WEATHER

Fair and cold tonight with low in upper 20s. Friday increasing cloudiness and warmer with high in 50s. Saturday considerable cloudiness and turning colder.

Yugoslavia's constitution adopted in 1963 named Marshal Tito president for life.

Callaway Calls for New Vote

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Republican Howard Callaway, locked in a winless governor's race with Democrat Lester G. Maddox and a write-in candidate, Ellis Arnall, said today he favors another vote by the people to decide the election.

But Maddox said he was glad the issue had been thrown into the Democratic legislature. It also has been taken into federal court with a hearing set Friday on a move to block election by the legislature.

Neither nominee managed a required majority in Tuesday's voting because of write-in ballots for Arnall, a former governor backed by a group of moderates and liberals.

Incumbent Gov. Carl E. Sanders, a Democrat, was in eligible to succeed himself.

With almost all of the votes counted, unofficially the totals were: Maddox 438,818, Callaway 436,592, Arnall, 55,597.

Callaway's camp still was hopeful the final, official tabulation would give him a slight plurality — obviously some advantage if the election whould be decided by the legislature.

Callaway said he would not file a lawsuit. "I will play the game under the rules, whatever the rules are," he said at a news conference.

Any type of popular vote, including a runoff election, would be preferable to legislative decision, Callaway said. But the Republican said he would take his case to the General Assembly if that is required. He said he had not talked to "a single member who didn't say he would put his state above party."

Maddox said at a news conference he believes a federal court suit challenging legislative election of a governor will be thrown out. He declined to predict victory.

But, he said: "I am not claiming victory, but I am glad the issue is in the hands of good Democrats who are in a big majority in the legislature. I am hopeful that I will get in."

Twenty File for 1968 Election

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Wednesday, the day after the 1966 general election in Missouri, 20 candidates filed for the 1968 elections.

The list, supplied by Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick, was headed by his own candidacy for re-election.

In 1962 Warren E. Hearnes, then secretary of state, ruled that no one could file his candidacy until the day after the preceding general election. Hearnes was the first to file then, for governor. And he won.

Generally, the idea behind early filing is to get at the top of the list on voting machines in the metropolitan areas. Consequently, most of Wednesday's filings were for the legislature or circuit judge in St. Louis, St. Louis County and Jackson County, where voting machines are used.

But there was one candidate for governor, a frequent seeker of public office. He was Harry C. Timmerman of Hazelwood, for the Republican nomination for governor.

Marines Celebrate 191st Anniversary

By ROBERT OHAMAN

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines in South Viet Nam celebrated the Corps' 191st anniversary today with ceremonies, steaks, birthday cakes and continuing patrols.

The Communists stayed out of their way.

Generals became delivery men in this area where about 62,000 Marines now are serving. Most of the Marines had an anniversary dinner of soup, broiled steak with mushrooms, potatoes, peas and corn, salad, cake and ice cream.

Helicopters carried the food to units on patrol.

Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, commander of U.S. Marines in Viet Nam, delivered eight cakes to units in the Da Nang area. Fifty other cakes were being cut and served by generals of the 1st and 3rd Marine Divisions.

Following tradition, the generals served the first two pieces of cake to the oldest and youngest Marines present.

Maj. Gen. Wood B. Kyle, commander of the 3rd Division, went by helicopter to a boulder-studded mountain south of Hue to cut the cake at the command post of the 2nd Battalion, 26th Marines.

He offered the first piece to Pfc. John Walker of Jones, Mich., 18, a battalion scout.

The second piece went to Staff Sgt. Claude C. Bookout, 51, of Vista, Calif., a battalion mess sergeant who had helped bake the cake.

At Artillery Plateau, where 30 howitzers point north to support Marines operating below the demilitarized zone, the tent city was named Camp J.J. Carroll in honor of a young Marine captain killed Oct. 5.

Carroll, of Miami Beach, Fla., was wounded fatally while leading his troops in an attack against North Vietnamese soldiers on Hill 484 several miles from the artillery positions.

Brig. Gen. Lyle F. English, assistant commander of the 3rd Division, unveiled a plaque which said Carroll "died as he lived, a gallant Leatherneck."

Despite the birthday celebration, the Marines made nearly 300 patrols, but there was no significant contact with the enemy, a spokesman said.

Boeing Promotes Former Resident

The Wall Street Journal recently carried an article on the success of a former Sikeston resident, T. A. Wilson, with the Boeing Co. He was born and reared in Sikeston.

He attended grade school here, before his family moved to Jefferson City, where he attended high school. His father, the late T. A. Wilson Sr., served as an executive with the Missouri State Highway Department here, before accepting a promotion to work in Jefferson City. He has two uncles and two aunts residing in Sikeston.

The relatives living here are, Mrs. Irma W. Allen, 1015 North Ranney; Miss Amy Allen, 325 Tanner; Joe Griffith, 609 Holly Hill, and Mort Griffith, 325 Tanner.

T. A. Wilson

By Glynn Mapes, Staff Reporter OF THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

SEATTLE - Boeing Co., named T. A. Wilson, 45 years old, to the newly created post of executive vice president placing him directly in line to succeed William M. Allen, 66, as president of the aerospace concern.

Mr. Wilson, formerly vice president in charge of operations and planning, was elected a Boeing director in April.

Speculation within Boeing has Mr. Allen, who has been president since 1945, planning to step up into the chairmanship which is vacant, while retaining, for a short time at least, the function of chief executive officer. Corporate insiders, however, don't expect this move in the next year.

The announcement helps clarify Boeing's order of succession to the presidency, which has been cloudy for many years. Boeing has never had a post of executive vice president. A number of heirs apparent have been suggested by corporate insiders; most recently, before this latest announcement, speculation centered on John O. Yeasting, 61, vice president and general manager of Boeing's commercial airline division. "Wilson is 16 years younger than John Yeasting. This would give him as long a run in the presidency as Bill Allen has had," one Boeing executive said.

Asked if Mr. Wilson's promotion meant he was likely to be Boeing's next president, a Boeing officer replied, "If I were a gambling man, I'd gamble yes."

Unlike Boeing president Allen, Mr. Wilson rose through the ranks of the giant aerospace concern, first joining the company as an engineer in 1943. Mr. Allen, on the other hand, stepped directly into the presidency from his position as senior partner of Boeing's outside legal counsel in Seattle. He had been a Boeing director for 14 years prior to his election as president.

Gemini Gets Go Signal

CAPE KENNEDY, FLA. (AP)- After two frustrating delays because of a faulty autopilot system in the astronauts' Titan 2 rocket, the Gemini 12 mission today received a green light to blast off Friday on the final flight in the Gemini series.

Technicians checked and rechecked a new autopilot throughout the night and pronounced it in fine working order this morning. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported all launching preparations were progressing smoothly.

Favorable weather was forecast for launch time Friday.

January Draft Quota Slashed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon called Wednesday for a draft of 27,600 men in January, the lowest total for a full month since last summer.

The January figure compares with 18,500 men sought for induction last June, the year's high of 49,200 in October and last January's 38,280.

The Defense Department's request to the Selective Service System for December was 12,100 but this reflects an intake only over a 16-day period preceding the Christmas holiday.

All the January inductees will go to the Army.

Soldier's Letter Brings Gift Response from Here

About 25 persons and organizations in Sikeston have contributed money, clothes, soap and toys for the people of Viet Nam, Mrs. Ralph Carroll of the American Legion Auxiliary, said today.

The response has been good, but not as great as we had hoped for, Mrs. Carroll said.

Mrs. Carroll and Mrs. Fred Tope Jr. are co-chairman of the auxiliary's civil affairs project. They are collecting items donated to be sent in Christmas packages to the villages in Viet Nam.

The deadline for contributions to the project is today. All items will be packed and must be sent before Nov. 15, Mrs. Carroll said.

The items are to be given villagers at a Christmas party sponsored by the force logistics support group, U.S. company organic section bravo, FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

Danny Alcorn requested the gifts in a letter to his parents.

Anyone who wants to contribute articles or money today, may telephone GR1-3163.

The money contributed has been used to buy clothing to be sent in the packages.

Airline Drops Merger Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proposed merger of two airlines serving the middlewest—Ozark and Central—is off.

It was reported the merger had collapsed over the problem of financing.

Ozark, of St. Louis, had filed a merger agreement, Sept. 20. Wednesday it asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to withdraw it. Ozark was to have been the surviving company.

Ozark said that, when the agreement was reached Sept. 12 it believed— and had informed Central—that its $12 million debenture financing already had been concluded, all bank debts had been paid, and the consent of debenture holders would not be required.

Ozark said it also told Central that arrangements for $31.5 million in senior financing were in satisfactory condition although they had not been formally executed, and that the consent of lending institutions was not required at that time.

Ozark said it now finds that this is not the case and that it cannot go ahead with the equipment program contemplated in connection with the merger.

Ozark had ordered a fleet of Fairchild Hiller F227B project airliners, to be delivered at a rate of about two a month.

These were to be paid for from the proceeds of the financing under Ozark's new credit arrangements. Thomas L. Grace, Ozark president, said the company recently learned that the lending institutions involved in the senior financing would not sign the new credit agreement.

The lending firms said the merger involved a change of circumstances, and extensive analysis and study would be needed before a final decision could be reached.

Vets Day Plans Here Call For Parade, Speech

Six organizations will be represented Friday afternoon in the Veteran's Day parade in Sikeston.

Representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Veterans of World War I, the American Legion, the Missouri National Guard, Sikeston junior and senior high school bands and several troops of Boy Scouts will comprise the parade.

Assembly for the parade is scheduled at 3 p.m. at Malone Park. The parade starts at 3:30 p.m.

It will travel in the downtown section on Center, Front and Malone Streets.

After the parade disperses, persons attending are asked to assemble for a brief Veteran's Day program in the American Legion Park.

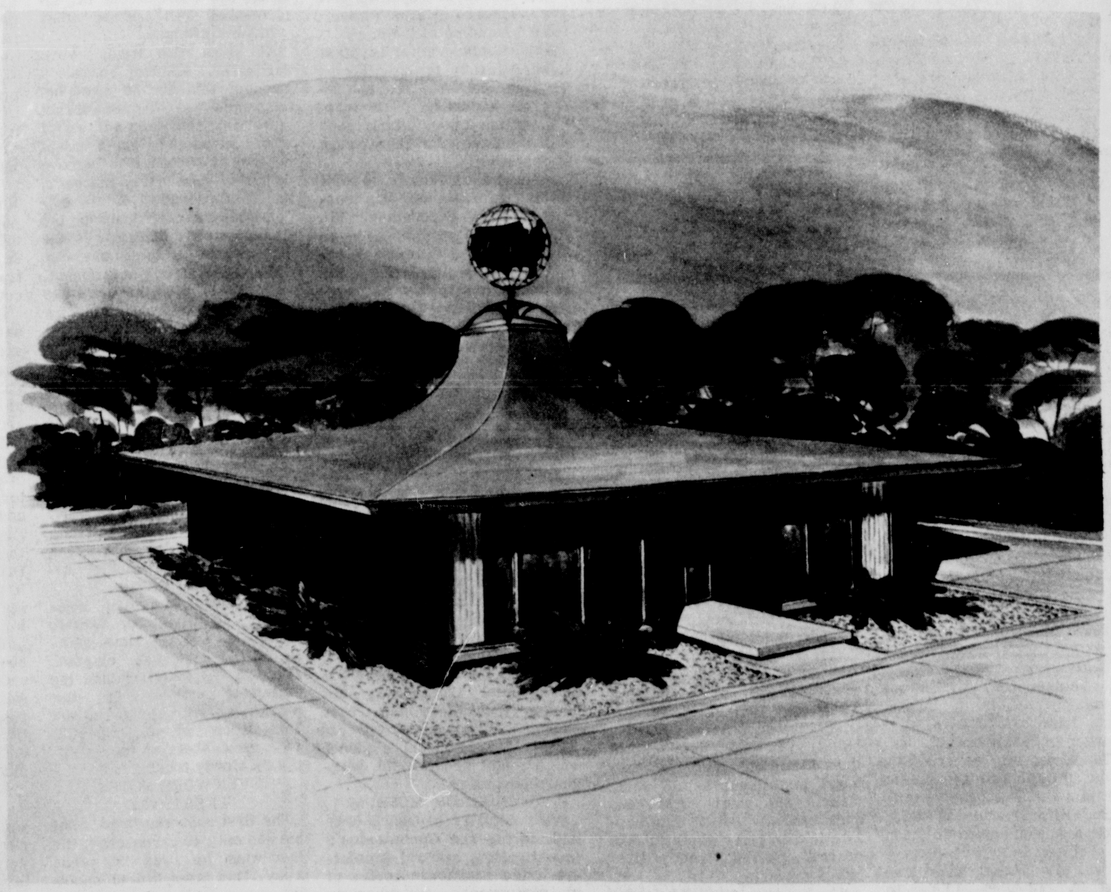
Invocation will be given by the Rev. Harold Belsheim, pastor of the Concordia Luthern Church. Speaker will be Harry C. Blanton. The closing flag ceremony will be conducted by Eddie schrader, scout executive.

After the ceremony, flags will be passed out to scouting units, who will present them to their schools Monday.

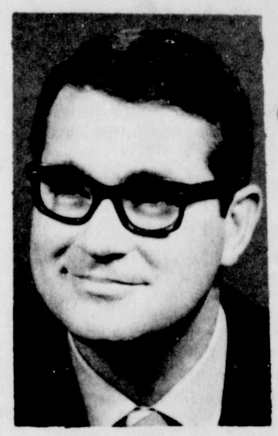
More than 1,000 flags are being presented to the schools in this area. The flag project is strongly endorsed by John Scarbrough, commander of the American Legion.

Martha Raye Cited

SAIGON, SOUTH VIET NAM (AP) - The U.S. Army has presented comedienne Martha Raye a certificate of appreciation for her many trips to Viet Nam to entertain American soldiers.



AN ARCHITECTS drawing of the new Mid-West National Insurance Center to be constructed in Sikeston is shown above. Ground breaking ceremonies attended by city officials and dignitaries were held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at the site of the new building, 102 Ingram. It is scheduled for completion by mid-February next year. The building's contemporary design is covered by a golden arched roof, built over a regular flat roof, with a whirling globe at the top. This is the 29th center opened by the company in a four state area encompassing Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Tennessee.



Rev. James Fitch

Rev. Fitch To National Headquarters

The Rev. James E. Fitch resigned as pastor of Fellowship Baptist church, 228 Missouri Ave. Wednesday night. His resignation becomes effective Monday, Nov. 21.

He will begin duties Dec. 1 as editor of Church Administration Products with the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville, Tenn.

In this position the Rev. Mr. Fitch will be an editor and staff writer with primary responsibility in the production of the "Church Program Gudebook" published annually by the Church Administration Department of the Sunday School Board. This department produces and publishes the "how-to-do" materials for the ministers and church leaders of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Fitch has been pastor of Fellowship Baptist church for three and a half years. He came to Sikeston following his graduation from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas.

Fitch is married to the former Carolyn Crenshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bridwell Crenshaw, 715 Park Ave., and granddaughter of Mrs. F. F. Collins, 505 Maple. The Fitches have two children, Richard Logan and Kimberly Kay.

Business As Usual Friday

Sikeston retail merchants will be open Friday, Veterans Day. The banks and savings and loan associations will close.

State, county and city offices, with the exception of the police and fire departments, will be closed.

Injuries Result From Accidents

Seven accidents including three involving minor injuries were reported by the highway patrol over the 14-county area Wednesday.

Henry Taylor, 29, Sikeston, driving a 1963 Chevrolet, was injured in a road accident at 3 a.m. Wednesday, when he missed a curve on Highway 61, six miles south of New Madrid.

His car ran off the road and struck a parked 1960 Chevrolet, owned by David Hicks, Lilbourn. Taylor was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Karen Webb, 19, Cape Girardeau, who was driving a 1963 Buick, was treated in a Chaffee clinic for bruises and shock, when she lost control on slick pavement and struck a 1960 Chevrolet, driven by William Angel, 59, Chaffee.

The accident occurred at 11 p.m. Wednesday on highway M, two miles east of Chaffee.

Jesse Thayer, 55, Steele, driving a 1962 Plymouth, was taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital, Hayti, when he received internal injuries from an accident yesterday at 5:15 p.m. on highway 164, two miles west of Steele.

He attempted to pass a car when his vehicle struck loose dirt on the shoulder and turned over.

In an accident Wednesday at 9:20 a.m., five miles north of Sikeston on Highway 61, a 1949 Dodge, driven by James Sherwood, 54, route one, attempted to turn onto the highway, when he was met by a 1965 Pontiac, driven by Opal Harrin, 54, Benton.

The Harrin woman put on her brakes to avoid a collision, when she lost control, ran off the road and struck a bank. She was not injured.

Hearing Opens Analogy

An interesting comparison, which brings a question of fairness to light, occurred during the course of a hearing involving an injunction against a Negro night spot in Sikeston.

The hearing was partially heard Monday in circuit court in Benton.

The question posed is one that demands admitting that some of the long accepted social manners of some of the more socially prominent Sikeston citizens are no more legal than similar actions taken by persons on the opposite end of the social ladder.

The actions are drinking intoxicating beverages. The question is this: Is it legal to allow the Sikeston Country Club, the American Legion Club and the Elks Club to sell intoxicants and then to deny the Sunset Improvement Club to do same?

All of the above mentioned clubs are legally organized corporations, which sell intoxicating beverages. They bypass the need for a liquor license by organizing as a corporation, or a private club. All of the clubs are in the city limits of Sikeston; all sell or have sold, mixed drinks. Yet a city ordinance in effect on paper states that only 3.2 per cent beer establishments may legally be licensed within the city limits. Package liquor stores may sell liquor by the package, if licensed.

The case partially heard in circuit court Monday in State vs. Sunset Improvement Club, a corporation.

A temporary injunction was placed on the operation of the club Oct. 27, after Scott county prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick filed application for the court order. He alleged in his application that lawless acts, selling beer without a license, were taking place at the club.

The attorney for the defendants, the club, filed a motion at the hearing to dissolve the temporary restraining order.

Judge Marshall Craig presided and agreed to take the motion under advisement. He reset the hearing on the motion to show cause for an injunction on Dec. 1.

The defendant's lawyer called the prosecutor to take the stand at the hearing. Potashnick was the only witness questioned. He was the only one to file an affadavit with the request for the injunction alleging that he saw beer sold there when he knew the place had no license to sell beer.

Potashnick told of two occassions when he looked through the window of the club and saw what he believed to be the sale of beer.

The following statements are certified by the official court reporter, as a true and correct partial transcript of shorthand notes taken at the hearing:

Q. Now, Mr. Potashnick, is it your opinion that anybody is lawless that sells beer?

School Board Group Will Attend Meet

Dr. A. D. Martin, president of the Sikeston public school board, and several other members will attend the annual meeting of the Missouri School Boards Association Sunday through Tuesday in Columbia.

Lynn Twitty, president-elect of the Missouri Association of School Administrators and superintendents of Sikeston schools, will speak on "Teamwork for Better Education" during the evening session Sunday night.

Bob Mitchell, Sikeston, a member of the organization's resolutions committee, also will attend the meeting.

Three Treated

Three persons were admitted to the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room Wednesday:

Carol Jean Williams of Marston, fell off bicycle; Connie Jane Woods, route one, Bertrand, can blew up in burning trash; Ronald Keith Tate of Dexter, closed door on left ring finger.

The list, supplied by Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick, was headed by his own candidacy for re-election.

In 1962 Warren E. Hearnes, then secretary of state, ruled that no one could file his candidacy until the day after the preceding general election. Hearnes was the first to file then, for governor. And he won.

Generally, the idea behind early filing is to get at the top of the list on voting machines in the metropolitan areas. Consequently, most of Wednesday's filings were for the legislature or circuit judge in St. Louis, St. Louis County and Jackson County, where voting machines are used.

But there was one candidate for governor, a frequent seeker of public office. He was Harry C. Timmerman of Hazelwood, for the Republican nomination for governor.

Boeing Promotes Former Resident

The Wall Street Journal recently carried an article on the success of a former Sikeston resident, T. A. Wilson, with the Boeing Co. He was born and reared in Sikeston.

He attended grade school here, before his family moved to Jefferson City, where he attended high school. His father, the late T. A. Wilson Sr., served as an executive with the Missouri State Highway Department here, before accepting a promotion to work in Jefferson City. He has two uncles and two aunts residing in Sikeston.

The relatives living here are, Mrs. Irma W. Allen, 1015 North Ranney; Miss Amy Allen, 325 Tanner; Joe Griffith, 609 Holly Hill, and Mort Griffith, 325 Tanner.

By Glynn Mapes, Staff Reporter OF THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

SEATTLE - Boeing Co., named T. A. Wilson, 45 years old, to the newly created post of executive vice president placing him directly in line to succeed William M. Allen, 66, as president of the aerospace concern.

Mr. Wilson, formerly vice president in charge of operations and planning, was elected a Boeing director in April.

Speculation within Boeing has Mr. Allen, who has been president since 1945, planning to step up into the chairmanship which is vacant, while retaining, for a short time at least, the function of chief executive officer. Corporate insiders, however, don't expect this move in the next year.

The announcement helps clarify Boeing's order of succession to the presidency, which has been cloudy for many years. Boeing has never had a post of executive vice president. A number of heirs apparent have been suggested by corporate insiders; most recently, before this latest announcement, speculation centered on John O. Yeasting, 61, vice president and general manager of Boeing's commercial airline division. "Wilson is 16 years younger than John Yeasting. This would give him as long a run in the presidency as Bill Allen has had," one Boeing executive said.

Asked if Mr. Wilson's promotion meant he was likely to be Boeing's next president, a Boeing officer replied, "If I were a gambling man, I'd gamble yes."

Unlike Boeing president Allen, Mr. Wilson rose through the ranks of the giant aerospace concern, first joining the company as an engineer in 1943. Mr. Allen, on the other hand, stepped directly into the presidency from his position as senior partner of Boeing's outside legal counsel in Seattle. He had been a Boeing director for 14 years prior to his election as president.

Gemini Gets Go Signal

CAPE KENNEDY, FLA. (AP)- After two frustrating delays because of a faulty autopilot system in the astronauts' Titan 2 rocket, the Gemini 12 mission today received a green light to blast off Friday on the final flight in the Gemini series.

Technicians checked and rechecked a new autopilot throughout the night and pronounced it in fine working order this morning. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported all launching preparations were progressing smoothly.

Favorable weather was forecast for launch time Friday.

January Draft Quota Slashed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon called Wednesday for a draft of 27,600 men in January, the lowest total for a full month since last summer.

The January figure compares with 18,500 men sought for induction last June, the year's high of 49,200 in October and last January's 38,280.

The Defense Department's request to the Selective Service System for December was 12,100 but this reflects an intake only over a 16-day period preceding the Christmas holiday.

All the January inductees will go to the Army.

Soldier's Letter Brings Gift Response from Here

About 25 persons and organizations in Sikeston have contributed money, clothes, soap and toys for the people of Viet Nam, Mrs. Ralph Carroll of the American Legion Auxiliary, said today.

The response has been good, but not as great as we had hoped for, Mrs. Carroll said.

Mrs. Carroll and Mrs. Fred Tope Jr. are co-chairman of the auxiliary's civil affairs project. They are collecting items donated to be sent in Christmas packages to the villages in Viet Nam.

The deadline for contributions to the project is today. All items will be packed and must be sent before Nov. 15, Mrs. Carroll said.

The items are to be given villagers at a Christmas party sponsored by the force logistics support group, U.S. company organic section bravo, FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96602.

Danny Alcorn requested the gifts in a letter to his parents.

Anyone who wants to contribute articles or money today, may telephone GR1-3163.

The money contributed has been used to buy clothing to be sent in the packages.

Airline Drops Merger Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proposed merger of two airlines serving the middlewest—Ozark and Central—is off.

It was reported the merger had collapsed over the problem of financing.

Ozark, of St. Louis, had filed a merger agreement, Sept. 20. Wednesday it asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to withdraw it. Ozark was to have been the surviving company.

Ozark said that, when the agreement was reached Sept. 12 it believed— and had informed Central—that its $12 million debenture financing already had been concluded, all bank debts had been paid, and the consent of debenture holders would not be required.

Ozark said it also told Central that arrangements for $31.5 million in senior financing were in satisfactory condition although they had not been formally executed, and that the consent of lending institutions was not required at that time.

Ozark said it now finds that this is not the case and that it cannot go ahead with the equipment program contemplated in connection with the merger.

Ozark had ordered a fleet of Fairchild Hiller F227B project airliners, to be delivered at a rate of about two a month.

These were to be paid for from the proceeds of the financing under Ozark's new credit arrangements. Thomas L. Grace, Ozark president, said the company recently learned that the lending institutions involved in the senior financing would not sign the new credit agreement.

The lending firms said the merger involved a change of circumstances, and extensive analysis and study would be needed before a final decision could be reached.

Vets Day Plans Here Call For Parade, Speech

Six organizations will be represented Friday afternoon in the Veteran's Day parade in Sikeston.

Representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Veterans of World War I, the American Legion, the Missouri National Guard, Sikeston junior and senior high school bands and several troops of Boy Scouts will comprise the parade.

Assembly for the parade is scheduled at 3 p.m. at Malone Park. The parade starts at 3:30 p.m.

It will travel in the downtown section on Center, Front and Malone Streets.

After the parade disperses, persons attending are asked to assemble for a brief Veteran's Day program in the American Legion Park.

Invocation will be given by the Rev. Harold Belsheim, pastor of the Concordia Luthern Church. Speaker will be Harry C. Blanton. The closing flag ceremony will be conducted by Eddie schrader, scout executive.

After the ceremony, flags will be passed out to scouting units, who will present them to their schools Monday.

More than 1,000 flags are being presented to the schools in this area. The flag project is strongly endorsed by John Scarbrough, commander of the American Legion.

Rev. James Fitch

Rev. Fitch To National Headquarters

The Rev. James E. Fitch resigned as pastor of Fellowship Baptist church, 228 Missouri Ave. Wednesday night. His resignation becomes effective Monday, Nov. 21.

He will begin duties Dec. 1 as editor of Church Administration Products with the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville, Tenn.

In this position the Rev. Mr. Fitch will be an editor and staff writer with primary responsibility in the production of the "Church Program Gudebook" published annually by the Church Administration Department of the Sunday School Board. This department produces and publishes the "how-to-do" materials for the ministers and church leaders of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Fitch has been pastor of Fellowship Baptist church for three and a half years. He came to Sikeston following his graduation from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas.

Fitch is married to the former Carolyn Crenshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bridwell Crenshaw, 715 Park Ave., and granddaughter of Mrs. F. F. Collins, 505 Maple. The Fitches have two children, Richard Logan and Kimberly Kay.

Business As Usual Friday

Sikeston retail merchants will be open Friday, Veterans Day. The banks and savings and loan associations will close.

State, county and city offices, with the exception of the police and fire departments, will be closed.

Injuries Result From Accidents

Seven accidents including three involving minor injuries were reported by the highway patrol over the 14-county area Wednesday.

Henry Taylor, 29, Sikeston, driving a 1963 Chevrolet, was injured in a road accident at 3 a.m. Wednesday, when he missed a curve on Highway 61, six miles south of New Madrid.

His car ran off the road and struck a parked 1960 Chevrolet, owned by David Hicks, Lilbourn. Taylor was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Karen Webb, 19, Cape Girardeau, who was driving a 1963 Buick, was treated in a Chaffee clinic for bruises and shock, when she lost control on slick pavement and struck a 1960 Chevrolet, driven by William Angel, 59, Chaffee.

The accident occurred at 11 p.m. Wednesday on highway M, two miles east of Chaffee.

Jesse Thayer, 55, Steele, driving a 1962 Plymouth, was taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital, Hayti, when he received internal injuries from an accident yesterday at 5:15 p.m. on highway 164, two miles west of Steele.

He attempted to pass a car when his vehicle struck loose dirt on the shoulder and turned over.

In an accident Wednesday at 9:20 a.m., five miles north of Sikeston on Highway 61, a 1949 Dodge, driven by James Sherwood, 54, route one, attempted to turn onto the highway, when he was met by a 1965 Pontiac, driven by Opal Harrin, 54, Benton.

The Harrin woman put on her brakes to avoid a collision, when she lost control, ran off the road and struck a bank. She was not injured.

Hearing Opens Analogy

An interesting comparison, which brings a question of fairness to light, occurred during the course of a hearing involving an injunction against a Negro night spot in Sikeston.

The hearing was partially heard Monday in circuit court in Benton.

The question posed is one that demands admitting that some of the long accepted social manners of some of the more socially prominent Sikeston citizens are no more legal than similar actions taken by persons on the opposite end of the social ladder.

The actions are drinking intoxicating beverages. The question is this: Is it legal to allow the Sikeston Country Club, the American Legion Club and the Elks Club to sell intoxicants and then to deny the Sunset Improvement Club to do same?

All of the above mentioned clubs are legally organized corporations, which sell intoxicating beverages. They bypass the need for a liquor license by organizing as a corporation, or a private club. All of the clubs are in the city limits of Sikeston; all sell or have sold, mixed drinks. Yet a city ordinance in effect on paper states that only 3.2 per cent beer establishments may legally be licensed within the city limits. Package liquor stores may sell liquor by the package, if licensed.

The case partially heard in circuit court Monday in State vs. Sunset Improvement Club, a corporation.

A temporary injunction was placed on the operation of the club Oct. 27, after Scott county prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick filed application for the court order. He alleged in his application that lawless acts, selling beer without a license, were taking place at the club.

The attorney for the defendants, the club, filed a motion at the hearing to dissolve the temporary restraining order.

Judge Marshall Craig presided and agreed to take the motion under advisement. He reset the hearing on the motion to show cause for an injunction on Dec. 1.

The defendant's lawyer called the prosecutor to take the stand at the hearing. Potashnick was the only witness questioned. He was the only one to file an affadavit with the request for the injunction alleging that he saw beer sold there when he knew the place had no license to sell beer.

Potashnick told of two occassions when he looked through the window of the club and saw what he believed to be the sale of beer.

The following statements are certified by the official court reporter, as a true and correct partial transcript of shorthand notes taken at the hearing:

Q. Now, Mr. Potashnick, is it your opinion that anybody is lawless that sells beer?

School Board Group Will Attend Meet

Dr. A. D. Martin, president of the Sikeston public school board, and several other members will attend the annual meeting of the Missouri School Boards Association Sunday through Tuesday in Columbia.

Lynn Twitty, president-elect of the Missouri Association of School Administrators and superintendents of Sikeston schools, will speak on "Teamwork for Better Education" during the evening session Sunday night.

Bob Mitchell, Sikeston, a member of the organization's resolutions committee, also will attend the meeting.

Three Treated

Three persons were admitted to the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room Wednesday:

Carol Jean Williams of Marston, fell off bicycle; Connie Jane Woods, route one, Bertrand, can blew up in burning trash; Ronald Keith Tate of Dexter, closed door on left ring finger.

Marines Celebrate 191st Anniversary

By ROBERT OHAMAN

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines in South Viet Nam celebrated the Corps' 191st anniversary today with ceremonies, steaks, birthday cakes and continuing patrols.

The Communists stayed out of their way.

Generals became delivery men in this area where about 62,000 Marines now are serving. Most of the Marines had an anniversary dinner of soup, broiled steak with mushrooms, potatoes, peas and corn, salad, cake and ice cream.

Helicopters carried the food to units on patrol.

Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, commander of U.S. Marines in Viet Nam, delivered eight cakes to units in the Da Nang area. Fifty other cakes were being cut and served by generals of the 1st and 3rd Marine Divisions.

Following tradition, the generals served the first two pieces of cake to the oldest and youngest Marines present.

Maj. Gen. Wood B. Kyle, commander of the 3rd Division, went by helicopter to a boulder-studded mountain south of Hue to cut the cake at the command post of the 2nd Battalion, 26th Marines.

He offered the first piece to Pfc. John Walker of Jones, Mich., 18, a battalion scout.

The second piece went to Staff Sgt. Claude C. Bookout, 51, of Vista, Calif., a battalion mess sergeant who had helped bake the cake.

At Artillery Plateau, where 30 howitzers point north to support Marines operating below the demilitarized zone, the tent city was named Camp J.J. Carroll in honor of a young Marine captain killed Oct. 5.

Carroll, of Miami Beach, Fla., was wounded fatally while leading his troops in an attack against North Vietnamese soldiers on Hill 484 several miles from the artillery positions.

Brig. Gen. Lyle F. English, assistant commander of the 3rd Division, unveiled a plaque which said Carroll "died as he lived, a gallant Leatherneck."

Despite the birthday celebration, the Marines made nearly 300 patrols, but there was no significant contact with the enemy, a spokesman said.

AN ARCHITECTS drawing of the new Mid-West National Insurance Center to be constructed in Sikeston is shown above. Ground breaking ceremonies attended by city officials and dignitaries were held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at the site of the new building, 102 Ingram. It is scheduled for completion by mid-February next year. The building's contemporary design is covered by a golden arched roof, built over a regular flat roof, with a whirling globe at the top. This is the 29th center opened by the company in a four state area encompassing Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Tennessee.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
CUSTOMER A KING AGAIN

The Customer Relations Advisory Council has designated December as National Customer Appreciation Month. We applaud this move to throw the spotlight of respect on customers everywhere - at every level of commerce - because we believe customers deserve more appreciation for the part they are playing in maintaining our buoyant economy.

As Joseph M. Segel, chairman of the Council points out, the logic of the idea is unassailable:

Since December is the month of the most frantic business activity, it is likewise the time when the most elementary lessons in good customer relations are most likely to be overlooked or neglected - even by the straight-A students of the company's employee courtesy programs.

"Yet," says Mr. Segel, "at no time of the year is it more important to impress customers that their patronage is truly appreciated." In stressing the familiar fact that indifference to customers is the most deadly poison that can infect a business, Mr. Segel offers the following check list for good customer relations:

Constant reminders to employees that it's the customer's business that produces the pay check,

Quick settlements of complaints - to the customer's full satisfaction,

Regular customer contact by mail, phone or in person,

And, at Yuletide, of course, the full use of the traditional opportunity to send out Christmas cards, and modest "thank you" gifts, as tangible tokens of appreciation.

Mr. Segel is so right when he says: "Friendly people buy more, and nothing makes a human being more expansive than the feeling that he is appreciated."

We salute the Customer Relations Advisory Council for sponsoring National Customer Appreciation Month, and urge all our business readers to support this worthwhile campaign.

SLIPPERY STREETS PRESENT CHALLENGE TO MOTORISTS.

Packed snow and ice on the streets will present a difficult challenge to area motorists but drivers can be ready to cope with such situations.

Tire chains or snow tires are a great help on snow-packed streets because it takes up to 12 times as much distance to stop on snow or ice than on dry pavement. Sand, gravel, rock salt or other abrasives should be carried in the trunk of your car, and empty milk cartons are ideal for storing this type of material. A small shovel will also come in mighty handy at times.

Contrary to popular belief, motorists do not increase traction on snow by letting some air out of their tires. To maintain proper traction on snow or ice, motorists should keep their cars moving steadily, trying not to make sudden changes in speed or direction. Keep a reasonable distance.

Skids are an ever-present danger under hazardous driving conditions. If your car does go into a skid you should first keep yourself under control and don't panic. The automobile can be controlled only if the driver is able to think fast and react accordingly. Never hit the brakes suddenly because the wheels may lock and increase the skid. Pump the brakes lightly. Steer in the direction the rear end of your car is skidding and when the car begins to straighten itself out, straighten out the front wheels and move ahead.

Clean off all your windows before you start out on a cold winter morning. Motorists who must park outside may find their car looking like a rolling snowball. This may appear funny, until the car lands in a ditch because the driver could not see. A few quick swipes with a broom or a little plastic scraper will usually do the trick. The few minutes it takes to clear all the windows may be just enough to allow you to see danger in time to avoid a tragic accident.

Be especially cautious on snow-covered streets "polished" by heavy traffic, and on bridges and overpasses. Reduce your speed to cope with the snow and give yourself plenty of time to get where you are going. Above all, keep calm and alert, keep your distance and allow enough time to reach your destination safely.

PROPERTY TAXES STILL MAINSTAY OF LOCAL BUDGETS.

While local governments in many states are adopting new taxes on income and sales and new license fees, etc., their main revenue reliance is still the property tax, notes Tax Foundation, Inc.

The property tax accounted for $22 billion or 57 percent of the revenue local governments got from their own sources in fiscal year 1964-65. That is more than double the $9.6 billion the tax produced in fiscal 1954 when it represented a fraction of a percent more of such revenue, according to the forthcoming 14th edition of the Foundation's biennial handbook, Facts and Figures on Government Finance.

In the 10-year period local revenue from sales and gross receipts taxes nearly tripled, from $703 million to more than $2 billion and revenue from local income taxes grew from $122 million to $433 million. State aid to local governments increased from $5.6 billion to more than $14 billion and the Federal government increased its aid from less than $300 million to more than $1 billion, the Foundation said.

Another of the book's tables shows that the cost of education in the nation's cities increased 101 percent, or from $1,237 million to $2,489 million from fiscal 1956 to fiscal 1965. Other increases in city function costs over this period are shown in the following table.

Function	FY 1956 (in millions $)	FY 1965	% Inc.
Education	$1,237	$2,489	101
Libraries	135	267	98
Public Welfare	479	927	93
Police	948	1, 739	83

Highways	1,186	1, 807	52

LOCAL BUSINESS

One of the great advantages of newspaper advertising is that it enables the advertiser to tell readers just where in the local community they can buy an advertised product.

National manufacturers realize an item has to be sold locally. The manufacturers, for that reason, place many advertisements in hometown newspapers and include the local dealer's name, at the company's expense.

One company executive recently said, "We know that most people don't decide to buy when they see our ad without a dealer's signature; they might only decide they'd like to have one of our suits. But to induce the public to buy our clothing we have to advertise our dealer outlets."

Most businesses are privately owned and have very loose contracts with national firms. The local business is generally under few, if any, controls of the national manufacturer.

"Nevertheless, we don't have a very tough time getting our local representatives to advertise," said the executive. "Once they learn that our generalized ads don't naturally draw customers to them, they initiate their own sales program."

The local newspaper provided the most adequate and regular listing of local business in a community. When there is a failure of local advertising, the consumer turns to other communities.

The pull of local competition keeps a community active and growing. Advertising lineage has been used by some researchers as the main guage of a community's level of business.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

College professors may be tyrants in the classroom but they are usually more henpecked at home than other husbands. The least henpecked males are plumbers, house painters, and hair dressers — probably because they deal with women all the time and have few illusions about them.

Nothing is duller than a sexy book written by a hack writer in the obvious hopes of making a million dollars from it.

A woman who overprides herself on her housekeeping is a museum curator at heart. A house that is eternally neat has an embalmed quality, and is about as uneasily restful as the viewing room in a funeral home. Life has to have some disorder to be interesting.

The surest way to wreck an enemy, if he is a poor man, is to give him three expensive gifts he can't afford — such as a $750 watch, a $1,500 color television and hi-fi set, and a Rolls-Royce. He will die rather than give them up, and work himself to death trying to meet the upkeep and repair bills.

Guys who wear colorful bird feathers at the side of their hats are usually lousy lovers — and also chronically overdue in their payments to the finance company.

More and more newspaper readers now read from the back page to the front — so they can read the bad news last.

One of the big differences between men and women is that men have less fear of looking awkward. A right-handed man will try to pour water from a heavy pitcher held in his left hand, if the pitcher happens to be at his left; a woman rarely, if ever, attempts this.

Stenographers say that at least one middle-aged guy in every business office is now secretly tinting his hair to make him look younger. If you want to know which guys in your office are doing it, ask any of the girls. They all know.

A majority of Bowery bums are victims of "momism." They may have deserted wife and children without a pang, but if you ask them about their dear old mothers they break into sentimental tears.

Girls who wear coral bead necklaces are usually more romantic than girls who wear fake or real pearls. Greedy girls pine for pearls.

It's a smart secretary today who drinks one less martini for lunch than her boss does.

The biggest thing to feel grateful about on Thanksgiving Day nowadays is that it still leaves a fellow nearly a month to look for a place to park his car while he does his Christmas shopping.

Her reply was the same, "I won it at a raffle." Then she added, "And dear, would you do me a favor. I expect to go to another raffle party tonight and I'm in a hurry. Would you mind drawing my bath?"

The husband did as instructed but when his wife came in to take her bath, she found that there was only a half-inch of water in the tub. "Dear," she said, "Why didn't you fill the tub?"

"Well, darling," he answered, "I didn't want you to get your raffle ticket wet!"

NO RETREAT FROM COMMUNISM

Upon his return from an on-the-spot look at the situation in Vietnam, the National Commander of the American Legion, Donald E. Johnson, had some rather caustic things to say about domestic critics who are crying for U.S. withdrawal.

He said:

"I simply cannot understand the bickering and heckling that is going on back here in the United States by certain misguided elements of our society. I am astounded at actions such as those that occurred in the "Teach-In" held in Washington this past week. Those people definitely are uninformed and what is worse they make no effort to become informed. To me the tragic part of such actions is the very great disservice done our brave combatants serving in Vietnam, and that such unsupported comments could be made by any American who reads the daily papers, in the face of world wide Communistic aggression."

During a visit to the White House, the Legion commander assured President Johnson of his own and the Legion's continued support for a policy of firmness against Communist aggression in Vietnam and anywhere else. Also, in keeping with the President's expressed desire that dissent should not be stifled but should be kept responsible, Legionnaire Johnson indicated that his organization will certainly continue its efforts to be constructive when it finds it necessary to be critical.

The Legion head expressly disavowed that he should be considered an expert because he had visited Vietnam for a few days. But any Legionnaire who, like the National Commander, has personally experienced combat is eminently better qualified, even without visiting the scene, than are most of the campus carpers who participate in the so-called "teach-ins." Also, any combat veteran knows -- and Legionnaire Johnson said that he observed in Vietnam -- the use which the enemy makes of such careless and unfounded statements as have come out of this home-front sniping.

Inasmuch as the "teach-in" participants are uninformed, it is not likely that their criticism will ever be constructive. As for the guiding intellects in those pseudo-intellectual orgies, we may well question that their objections are even conscientious.

FOR RESISTANCE TO CHANGE

Most of us have a negative reaction to change, perhaps a fear of the unknown routine. Here are some pointers which executives can use to make necessary changes more pleasant for all:

1. Be prompt with the official announcement -- don't let the rumor mill get a head start.
2. Explain the reasons.
3. Explain what the changes mean to each individual.
4. Don't let employees jump to conclusions; instead encourage their questions and clear up any misunderstandings.
5. Don't distort the truth.
6. Forget personal feelings, and be enthusiastic about new ideas and new methods.
7. Look at it from the employee's point of view.
8. Ask for advice from those who do the jobs.

FUNDAMENTAL CAUSE OF RIOTS

The fundamental cause of the savage riots that have rocked our great cities is not racial tensions, for these have always existed. It is not poverty, for this has always existed. It is not even agitators, for these too have always existed. The agitators have used racial and economic issues to inflame people, but they always try to do this. What we have to explain is their success.

The fundamental cause of the recent wave of riots is the direct encouragement given to rioting and law-breaking by public officials and by recognized, respected community leaders. These are the men who in more normal times damp down the fires of anger, just or unjust, who shame agitators and reveal them for what they are, who uphold law and order and the constitutional, American ways of settling disputes and gaining a hearing for grievances.

Nowadays many of these men seem to dwell in a never-never land of utter irresponsibility and unreality. Apparently willing to excuse any act, no matter how violent or sordid, by anyone who can claim racial prejudice or poverty as its psychological cause, they have helped bring whole communities to the brink of chaos.

Here is an example of the kind of statements these men make, which have done so much to create and intensify the menace of riots. William Booth, an appointee of Mayor John Lindsay of New York City to the Human Rights Commission, recently said: "I don't preach violence. But if the people aren't getting what they need, they should go out and take it."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Thousands of words have been written casting doubts on the Warren report and the accuracy of its findings on President Kennedy's assassination. There are a lot of facts, however, which the doubt - casters have either ignored or glossed over. Here are some of them:

No. 1 Doubt - caster is Mark Lane, attorney for Lee Harvey Oswald's mother. Lane has delivered hundreds of lectures and written a book taking issue with the findings of the Warren Commission.

What Lane neglects to point out is that while he was touring Europe expounding his views on the assassination, he was summoned back to Washington to testify before the Warren Commission. Its members wanted to take advantage of the facts he was broadcasting in Europe which might help them in their investigation.

Lane, however, refused.

He was so uncooperative that the Warren Commission considered citing him for contempt, which it had the power to do. The Commission finally decided that a jail sentence for Lane would only make him a martyr and give him the publicity he was looking for.

One issue in the assassination which was pumped up as a big mystery was the whereabout of the photographs and x rays of the late President's body, and the clothes he wore on the fatal day. It was reported that these had been supressed or destroyed in order to conceal evidence which might prove the Warren report false.

HORROR MUSEUM

What actually happened was that during the Commission's investigation, several promoters tried to secure copies of the photographs and other exhibits connected with the assassination, such as Oswald's gun, in order to establish a traveling museum to be shown at country fairs.

The photograph of Kennedy's head, split open by a bullet, is gruesome in the extreme. And since the Commission believed that it was not in good taste to give a national tragedy the aspects of a sideshow, Chief Justice Warren ordered all the photos and x-rays sent to the justice department, with instructions that they not be shown to anyone except law enforcement officers or other qualified officials.

At about that time, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy made a request that she be given her husband's clothing. She did not state why she wanted it, and it was suspected she might destroy it in order to remove unhappy memories. However, the disappearance of any evidence might cast doubt on the Commission's finding, so the President's clothing was also sent to the justice department.

As of last week these articles have been turned out to the archives office.

The President's clothing, incidentally, clearly shows that fabric of his shirt in front is bent out, indicating that the bullet which passed through his body came from the neck.

This is important, because some critics of the Warren report claim that one shot fired at the President and Gov. Connally came from the front, not the rear, which, they claim, meant there was another assassin besides Oswald.

Some doubt has also been raised as to whether Oswald could have fired three shots in the brief time elapsed. However, Oswald attained the rating of marksman in the Marine Corps, and it did not take much of an expert to fire three shots at the President's slowly moving car.

EVEN WORK NOTES PRESERVED

The first shot was fired when he was only 40 yards away, the last when he was 70 yards away. This is not difficult shooting for an average hunter. The Texas tower murderer shot down people at a range of 300 yards with deadly accuracy.

The Warren Commission report is volumnious. It takes up an entire book shelf. The Commission did not suppress anything. Its members were mindful that future historians would be digging through the records for years to come, so Commission members even put their work sheets in the final report -- the only Commission ever to do so.

One point made by the critics, that the Commission's members were busy men and didn't have time to attend every session, is true. Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., was busy guiding the military appropriations bill through congress during part of the Commission's proceedings, therefore had to be on the senate floor.

However, a lawyer was appointed to be his representative at all Commission hearings, and at the end of the day Sen. Russell had a transcription of the entire proceedings placed on his desk.

Russell is a thorough public servant, and at one time, dissatisfied with the first cross-examination of Marina Oswald, the assassin's widow, he took a trip to Texas to cross - examine her again.

The Commission's work was under the direct supervision of Lee Rankin, former Solicitor General of the United States under Eisenhower. Rankin, a Republican, was appointed on the recommendation of Herbert Brownell, chairman of the Republican National Committee and campaign manager for both Dewey and Eisenhower. Later Rankin became Eisenhower's attorney general.

On the Warren Commission were the following top Republicans: Earl Warren, three times elected Republican governor of California, and candidate for Vice President on the Dewey ticket in 1948; John J. McCloy, former assistant secretary of war, high commissioner to Germany, head of the World Bank and head of the Chase Manhattan Bank; Sen. John Sherman Cooper, former Governor of Kentucky and Ambassador to India; Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, Republican leader of the house.

They were not interested in covering up anything for either the Kennedy or the Johnson administration.

Heavily Paid Commercial Airline Pilots Want Special 'Fright Pay' in Asian Skies.

Washington, D. C. -- There's one thing about flying off into the wild blue yonder of South East Asia if you're a pilot -- the pay is upper class. That is, if you're a commercial pilot.

It's not only the $22,000 to $35,000 a year in direct money. It's the fringes you get. For grim example, if you're flying for the regular U. S. airlines and you get badly hurt or killed by the "hostile action of a representative of a foreign government," you get $100,000.

If you're a $100-a-week fighter pilot and you get cut down, you get a medal and a couple of bucks in soldiers' insurance.

If you're a young officer flying for the government, you get about $25 a week extra for "hazardous duty pay." But if you're a member of the Air Line Pilots Assn., (AFL-CIO) flying commercially, you're not quite as charitable.

In current negotiations with Trans World Airlines, the pilots are asking for a fringe tassle of $100 - a - landing in Viet nam. This is but one of many hard bids for risk pay which would begin at the point of departure for the vast war zone and Asian skies, and end back in the home airport.

The commercial lines such as TWA and Pan American Airways are carrying men and some cargo to the general war zone. Some of these flights are called "R and R" -- rest and recreation flights.

Pam Am runs a massive aerial ferry. Its clipper ships roll out of Hong Kong, on to Saigon and then back to Hong Kong, Tokyo and Taipei with troops fatigued and eager for a break in the fighting and tensions. Then back they go via Pan Am or TWA to the embattled fronts.

For such ferrying, co - pilots and younger captains earn at least $22,000 a year. Senior men handling jet crat take in at least $35,000 annually.

Those based at Pan Am, Hong Kong, do pretty well with the side benefits. They get a special cost of living allowance. And then a $75-a-month incentive pay and another $75 atop that. This makes it a mighty rich "foreign station allowance."

One can understand their fear. But they are paid more heavily than the others for their fright.

Those ferry planes carry crews and the stewardesses are scared, too. No one doubts they have reason to be.

But these girls, members of the Transport Workers Union, must be satisfied with having palpitations at lower rates. Class is class. Pilots are pilots, even in the same flying stock.

So the girls are willing to fly in with the young troops at a rate of $12 for each landing. This goes for hostesses and pursuers.

The girls, mighty cheery company for young GI's not knowing what there will be when they get down out of the wild blue yonder, must eat, just like pilots. So the hostesses are granted, under their union contract, 46 cents per stopover hour for meals in Okinawa and 50 cents per hour on the Saigon runs.

They get $1.90 a day for laundry and tips. It all comes to a $13.90 per diem expense base, and totals $25.90 with the special landing bonus. So one must assume that the pilots reckon themselves worth about four times the cabin crew.

The girls and the pursers serving or deadheading outside the continential U. S. on war area flights are covered by insurance totaling $50,000.

Of this, $15,000 is for accident, death or dismemberment coverage, and the additional $35,000 is for death or dismemberment arising out of cargo accidents or hostile action during a Pacific Military Airlift Command flight.

For the pilots, on Pan Am for example, the total of such insurance is exactly twice that of the girls -- $100,000.

Small wonder the Pentagon can't keep its pilots. Small wonder some 70 per cent of them quit and 60 per cent of these head for the commercial airlines.

The armed forces' aviators run into the commercial pilots in the hotels and night spots of Saigon. Judging from reports from some of the military, the fighter pilots are not exactly inspired by the news that the commercial men want $100 a landing in addition to a long list of fringes which includes the right to return to the U.S. every 45 days.

There should be some equity -- especially in the wild blue yonder.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
CUSTOMER A KING AGAIN

The Customer Relations Advisory Council has designated December as National Customer Appreciation Month. We applaud this move to throw the spotlight of respect on customers everywhere - at every level of commerce - because we believe customers deserve more appreciation for the part they are playing in maintaining our buoyant economy.

As Joseph M. Segel, chairman of the Council points out, the logic of the idea is unassailable:

Since December is the month of the most frantic business activity, it is likewise the time when the most elementary lessons in good customer relations are most likely to be overlooked or neglected - even by the straight-A students of the company's employee courtesy programs.

"Yet," says Mr. Segel, "at no time of the year is it more important to impress customers that their patronage is truly appreciated." In stressing the familiar fact that indifference to customers is the most deadly poison that can infect a business, Mr. Segel offers the following check list for good customer relations:

Constant reminders to employees that it's the customer's business that produces the pay check,

Quick settlements of complaints - to the customer's full satisfaction,

Regular customer contact by mail, phone or in person,

And, at Yuletide, of course, the full use of the traditional opportunity to send out Christmas cards, and modest "thank you" gifts, as tangible tokens of appreciation.

Mr. Segel is so right when he says: "Friendly people buy more, and nothing makes a human being more expansive than the feeling that he is appreciated."

We salute the Customer Relations Advisory Council for sponsoring National Customer Appreciation Month, and urge all our business readers to support this worthwhile campaign.

SLIPPERY STREETS PRESENT CHALLENGE TO MOTORISTS.

Packed snow and ice on the streets will present a difficult challenge to area motorists but drivers can be ready to cope with such situations.

Tire chains or snow tires are a great help on snow-packed streets because it takes up to 12 times as much distance to stop on snow or ice than on dry pavement. Sand, gravel, rock salt or other abrasives should be carried in the trunk of your car, and empty milk cartons are ideal for storing this type of material. A small shovel will also come in mighty handy at times.

Contrary to popular belief, motorists do not increase traction on snow by letting some air out of their tires. To maintain proper traction on snow or ice, motorists should keep their cars moving steadily, trying not to make sudden changes in speed or direction. Keep a reasonable distance.

Skids are an ever-present danger under hazardous driving conditions. If your car does go into a skid you should first keep yourself under control and don't panic. The automobile can be controlled only if the driver is able to think fast and react accordingly. Never hit the brakes suddenly because the wheels may lock and increase the skid. Pump the brakes lightly. Steer in the direction the rear end of your car is skidding and when the car begins to straighten itself out, straighten out the front wheels and move ahead.

Clean off all your windows before you start out on a cold winter morning. Motorists who must park outside may find their car looking like a rolling snowball. This may appear funny, until the car lands in a ditch because the driver could not see. A few quick swipes with a broom or a little plastic scraper will usually do the trick. The few minutes it takes to clear all the windows may be just enough to allow you to see danger in time to avoid a tragic accident.

Be especially cautious on snow-covered streets "polished" by heavy traffic, and on bridges and overpasses. Reduce your speed to cope with the snow and give yourself plenty of time to get where you are going. Above all, keep calm and alert, keep your distance and allow enough time to reach your destination safely.

PROPERTY TAXES STILL MAINSTAY OF LOCAL BUDGETS.

While local governments in many states are adopting new taxes on income and sales and new license fees, etc., their main revenue reliance is still the property tax, notes Tax Foundation, Inc.

The property tax accounted for $22 billion or 57 percent of the revenue local governments got from their own sources in fiscal year 1964-65. That is more than double the $9.6 billion the tax produced in fiscal 1954 when it represented a fraction of a percent more of such revenue, according to the forthcoming 14th edition of the Foundation's biennial handbook, Facts and Figures on Government Finance.

In the 10-year period local revenue from sales and gross receipts taxes nearly tripled, from $703 million to more than $2 billion and revenue from local income taxes grew from $122 million to $433 million. State aid to local governments increased from $5.6 billion to more than $14 billion and the Federal government increased its aid from less than $300 million to more than $1 billion, the Foundation said.

Another of the book's tables shows that the cost of education in the nation's cities increased 101 percent, or from $1,237 million to $2,489 million from fiscal 1956 to fiscal 1965. Other increases in city function costs over this period are shown in the following table.

Function	FY 1956 (in millions $)	FY 1965	% Inc.
Education	$1,237	$2,489	101

LOCAL BUSINESS

One of the great advantages of newspaper advertising is that it enables the advertiser to tell readers just where in the local community they can buy an advertised product.

National manufacturers realize an item has to be sold locally. The manufacturers, for that reason, place many advertisements in hometown newspapers and include the local dealer's name, at the company's expense.

One company executive recently said, "We know that most people don't decide to buy when they see our ad without a dealer's signature; they might only decide they'd like to have one of our suits. But to induce the public to buy our clothing we have to advertise our dealer outlets."

Most businesses are privately owned and have very loose contracts with national firms. The local business is generally under few, if any, controls of the national manufacturer.

"Nevertheless, we don't have a very tough time getting our local representatives to advertise," said the executive. "Once they learn that our generalized ads don't naturally draw customers to them, they initiate their own sales program."

The local newspaper provided the most adequate and regular listing of local business in a community. When there is a failure of local advertising, the consumer turns to other communities.

The pull of local competition keeps a community active and growing. Advertising lineage has been used by some researchers as the main guage of a community's level of business.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

College professors may be tyrants in the classroom but they are usually more henpecked at home than other husbands. The least henpecked males are plumbers, house painters, and hair dressers — probably because they deal with women all the time and have few illusions about them.

Nothing is duller than a sexy book written by a hackwriter in the obvious hopes of making a million dollars from it.

A woman who overprides herself on her housekeeping is a museum curator at heart. A house that is eternally neat has an embalmed quality, and is about as uneasily restful as the viewing room in a funeral home. Life has to have some disorder to be interesting.

The surest way to wreck an enemy, if he is a poor man, is to give him three expensive gifts he can't afford — such as a $750 watch, a $1,500 color television and hi-fi set, and a Rolls-Royce. He will die rather than give them up, and work himself to death trying to meet the upkeep and repair bills.

Guys who wear colorful bird feathers at the side of their hats are usually lousy lovers — and also chronically overdue in their payments to the finance company.

More and more newspaper readers now read from the back page to the front — so they can read the bad news last.

One of the big differences between men and women is that men have less fear of looking awkward. A right-handed man will try to pour water from a heavy pitcher held in his left hand, if the pitcher happens to be at his left; a woman rarely, if ever, attempts this.

Stenographers say that at least one middle-aged guy in every business office is now secretly tinting his hair to make him look younger. If you want to know which guys in your office are doing it, ask any of the girls. They all know.

A majority of Bowery bums are victims of "momism." They may have deserted wife and children without a pang, but if you ask them about their dear old mothers they break into sentimental tears.

Girls who wear coral bead necklaces are usually more romantic than girls who wear fake or real pearls. Greedy girls pine for pearls.

It's a smart secretary today who drinks one less martini for lunch than her boss does.

The biggest thing to feel grateful about on Thanksgiving Day nowadays is that it still leaves a fellow nearly a month to look for a place to park his car while he does his Christmas shopping.

Her reply was the same, "I won it at a raffle." Then she added, "And dear, would you do me a favor. I expect to go to another raffle party tonight and I'm in a hurry. Would you mind drawing my bath?"

The husband did as instructed but when his wife came in to take her bath, she found that there was only a half-inch of water in the tub. "Dear," she said, "Why didn't you fill the tub?"

"Well, darling," he answered, "I didn't want you to get your raffle ticket wet!"

NO RETREAT FROM COMMUNISM

Upon his return from an on-the-spot look at the situation in Vietnam, the National Commander of the American Legion, Donald E. Johnson, had some rather caustic things to say about domestic critics who are crying for U.S. withdrawal.

He said:

"I simply cannot understand the bickering and heckling that is going on back here in the United States by certain misguided elements of our society. I am astounded at actions such as those that occurred in the "Teach-In" held in Washington this past week. Those people definitely are uninformed and what is worse they make no effort to become informed. To me the tragic part of such actions is the very great disservice done our brave combatants serving in Vietnam, and that such unsupported comments could be made by any American who reads the daily papers, in the face of world wide Communistic aggression."

During a visit to the White House, the Legion commander assured President Johnson of his own and the Legion's continued support for a policy of firmness against Communist aggression in Vietnam and anywhere else. Also, in keeping with the President's expressed desire that dissent should not be stifled but should be kept responsible, Legionnaire Johnson indicated that his organization will certainly continue its efforts to be constructive when it finds it necessary to be critical.

The Legion head expressly disavowed that he should be considered an expert because he had visited Vietnam for a few days. But any Legionnaire who, like the National Commander, has personally experienced combat is eminently better qualified, even without visiting the scene, than are most of the campus carpers who participate in the so-called "teach-ins." Also, any combat veteran knows -- and Legionnaire Johnson said that he observed in Vietnam -- the use which the enemy makes of such careless and unfounded statements as have come out of this home-front sniping.

Inasmuch as the "teach-in" participants are uninformed, it is not likely that their criticism will ever be constructive. As for the guiding intellects in those pseudo-intellectual orgies, we may well question that their objections are even conscientious.

FOR RESISTANCE TO CHANGE

Most of us have a negative reaction to change, perhaps a fear of the unknown routine. Here are some pointers which executives can use to make necessary changes more pleasant for all:

1. Be prompt with the official announcement -- don't let the rumor mill get a head start.
2. Explain the reasons.
3. Explain what the changes mean to each individual.
4. Don't let employees jump to conclusions; instead encourage their questions and clear up any misunderstandings.
5. Don't distort the truth.
6. Forget personal feelings, and be enthusiastic about new ideas and new methods.
7. Look at it from the employee's point of view.
8. Ask for advice from those who do the jobs.

Russell is a thorough public servant, and at one time, dissatisfied with the first cross-examination of Marina Oswald, the assassin's widow, he took a trip to Texas to cross - examine her again.

The Commission's work was under the direct supervision of Lee Rankin, former Solicitor General of the United States under Eisenhower. Rankin, a Republican, was appointed on the recommendation of Herbert Brownell, chairman of the Republican National Committee and campaign manager for both Dewey and Eisenhower. Later Rankin became Eisenhower's attorney general.

On the Warren Commission were the following top Republicans: Earl Warren, three times elected Republican governor of California, and candidate for Vice President on the Dewey ticket in 1948; John J. McCloy, former assistant secretary of war, high commissioner to Germany, head of the World Bank and head of the Chase Manhattan Bank; Sen. John Sherman Cooper, former Governor of Kentucky and Ambassador to India; Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, Republican leader of the house.

They were not interested in covering up anything for either the Kennedy or the Johnson administration.

Heavily Paid Commercial Airline Pilots Want Special 'Fright Pay' in Asian Skies.

Washington, D. C.: -- There's one thing about flying off into the wild blue yonder of South East Asia if you're a pilot -- the pay is upper class. That is, if you're a commercial pilot.

It's not only the $22,000 to $35,000 a year in direct money. It's the fringes you get. For grim example, if you're flying for the regular U. S. airlines and you get badly hurt or killed by the "hostile action of a representative of a foreign government," you get $100,000.

If you're a $100-a-week fighter pilot and you get cut down, you get a medal and a couple of bucks in soldiers' insurance.

If you're a young officer flying for the government, you get about $25 a week extra for "hazardous duty pay." But if you're a member of the Air Line Pilots Assn., (AFL-CIO) flying commercially, you're not quite as charitable.

In current negotiations with Trans World Airlines, the pilots are asking for a fringe tassle of $100 - a - landing in Viet nam. This is but one of many hard bids for risk pay which would begin at the point of departure for the vast war zone and Asian skies, and end back in the home airport.

The commercial lines such as TWA and Pan American Airways are carrying men and some cargo to the general war zone. Some of these flights are called "R and R" -- rest and recreation flights.

Pam Am runs a massive aerial ferry. Its clipper ships roll out of Hong Kong, on to Saigon and then back to Hong Kong, Tokyo and Taipei with troops fatigued and eager for a break in the fighting and tensions. Then back they go via Pan Am or TWA to the embattled fronts.

For such ferrying, co - pilots and younger captains earn at least $22,000 a year. Senior men handling jet crat take in at least $35,000 annually.

Those based at Pan Am, Hong Kong, do pretty well with the side benefits. They get a special cost of living allowance. And then a $75-a-month incentive pay and another $75 atop that. This makes it a mighty rich "foreign station allowance."

One can understand their fear. But they are paid more heavily than the others for their fright.

Those ferry planes carry crews and the stewardesses are scared, too. No one doubts they have reason to be.

But these girls, members of the Transport Workers Union, must be satisfied with having palpitations at lower rates. Class is class. Pilots are pilots, even in the same flying stock.

So the girls are willing to fly in with the young troops at a rate of $12 for each landing. This goes for hostesses and pursuers.

The girls, mighty cheery company for young GI's not knowing what there will be when they get down out of the wild blue yonder, must eat, just like pilots. So the hostesses are granted, under their union contract, 46 cents per stopover hour for meals in Okinawa and 50 cents per hour on the Saigon runs.

They get $1.90 a day for laundry and tips. It all comes to a $13.90 per diem expense base, and totals $25.90 with the special landing bonus. So one must assume that the pilots reckon themselves worth about four times the cabin crew.

The girls and the pursers serving or deadheading outside the continential U. S. on war area flights are covered by insurance totaling $50,000.

Of this, $15,000 is for accident, death or dismemberment coverage, and the additional $35,000 is for death or dismemberment arising out of cargo accidents or hostile action during a Pacific Military Airlift Command flight.

For the pilots, on Pan Am for example, the total of such insurance is exactly twice that of the girls -- $100,000.

Small wonder the Pentagon can't keep its pilots. Small wonder some 70 per cent of them quit and 60 per cent of these head for the commercial airlines.

The armed forces' aviators run into the commercial pilots in the hotels and night spots of Saigon. Judging from reports from some of the military, the fighter pilots are not exactly inspired by the news that the commercial men want $100 a landing in addition to a long list of fringes which includes the right to return to the U.S. every 45 days.

There should be some equity -- especially in the wild blue yonder.

Mrs. Woods Is Hostess For Meeting

The Fideles Class of the First Baptist church Sunday School met with Mrs. Anita Woods, 801 Taylor St., Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Pauline Rogers, class president, brought the meeting to order by calling on Mrs. Molene Childers for the opening prayer.

Mrs. Lois Hart gave the devotional, a reading entitled, "God Answers Prayer". She then read the minutes of the previous meeting.

The class voted to change the date of the meetings from the second Tuesday each month, to the third Tuesday in order to accommodate the members who have been unable to attend because of the Parent-Teachers Association which also meets on the second Tuesday.

It was decided that instead of exchanging personal gifts at the Christmas party, the class will bring gifts for either needy children, or senior citizens. The Christmas party will be in the home of Mrs. Ivarine Bailey, 409 Shady Lane, with Mrs. Molene Childers as co-hostess.

After the business was completed, Mrs. Rogers closed the meeting with a poem "Let Him Know."

A social hour followed. Members discussed the outcome of the election. Pumpkin pie with whipped cream, coffee, and tea were served by Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Frances Farris, co-hostess.

THE THORN

A man was invited to the home of a friend to hear some fine recorded music. Toward the close of the evening the host played a certain record through once, and then after what was apparently a change of needles, he played it through again. His guest was asked which rendition of the music he liked better.

"When you played it the second time it was ever so much softer and sweeter," he said. "What made the difference?"

The host replied, "The second time I used a thorn."

The thorn is though of as an object inflicting pain upon one touched by it. And so it is -- on a rose bush, on a thorn tree and in the crown that was pressed on the Savior's brow.

But for every thorn on the rose bush there is a petal of exquisite beauty, and the larger the thorns, the larger and more lovely the rose. One braves the dangers of the thorn tree, for its blossoms are well worth the sting of the thorn points. And the face beneath the thorn crown expresses infinite love and compassion.

St. Paul refers to his special unnamed trial as a "thorn in the flesh," given to him "lest he be exalted above measure." Gloriously he bore the pain and, in the spirit of humility, pressed on toward the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

There is no way to escape the thorns that tear at our lives and ofttimes bring drops of our life blood. But with the thorn God gives a rose, if the eyes of the soul are open to see it. With the prick of the thorns there is born new courage. And the music of a life -- its love, its tenderness, its compassion - is far sweeter when there has been trial and pain bravely borne.

Unfavorable Weather Pushes Food Prices Up

NEW YORK AP -- Winter and housewives' boycotts are extending an icy finger into the supermarkets.

Snow and subfreezing weather have cut into the last of the apple crop in New York, and frosty weather has limited potatoes to digging in Idaho.

Even Florida has been touched by freezing weather causing light damage to some vegetable crops.

It adds up to diminishing supplies of fresh fruits and vegetables, and thus higher prices.

Meanwhile, armies of women have been picketing and boycotting foodstores in an attempt to force lower prices.

William G. Hildebrand, executive director of the New York State Food Merchants Association, said the demonstrations usually caused a 10 per cent decline in business of picketed stores.

Sales of the nation's food chains were up 6 per cent from 1965 in the week ended Oct. 29. The two previous weeks they had been up 9 and 10 per cent.

In Pennsylvania, two retail milk operators have taken advantage of the protests over food prices to set up cutrate milk stores, selling mile for 79 cents a gallon.

That is 21 cents below the control level, and the Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission, which sets minimum retail prices, has ordered an investigation.

Housewives in some areas have called off their boycotts, but others still are springing up from New York to Hawaii.

Pat Sandler Says Blouses Old-fashioned

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

Blouses are old-fashioned, as of Wednesday when Pat Sandler of Highlights introduced his spring collection.

These brief toppers were quite proper, Sandler said. Most people have come to accept the bare midriff, he says. "And the bra is both comfortable and modest."

Will it be acceptable as a way of dress in the poshest places? Pants suits, though lushly velvet, or opulent with glitter and though worn by the most glamorous women, have been vetoed by maitre d's at velvet ropes.

Unfavorable Weather Pushes Food Prices Up

NEW YORK AP -- Winter and housewives' boycotts are extending an icy finger into the supermarkets.

Snow and subfreezing weather have cut into the last of the apple crop in New York, and frosty weather has limited potatoes to digging in Idaho.

Even Florida has been touched by freezing weather causing light damage to some vegetable crops.

It adds up to diminishing supplies of fresh fruits and vegetables, and thus higher prices.

Meanwhile, armies of women have been picketing and boycotting foodstores in an attempt to force lower prices.

William G. Hildebrand, executive director of the New York State Food Merchants Association, said the demonstrations usually caused a 10 per cent decline in business of picketed stores.

Sales of the nation's food chains were up 6 per cent from 1965 in the week ended Oct. 29. The two previous weeks they had been up 9 and 10 per cent.

In Pennsylvania, two retail milk operators have taken advantage of the protests over food prices to set up cutrate milk stores, selling mile for 79 cents a gallon.

That is 21 cents below the control level, and the Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission, which sets minimum retail prices, has ordered an investigation.

Housewives in some areas have called off their boycotts, but others still are springing up from New York to Hawaii.

Big Red to Go With Nofsinger Sunday

PITTSBURGH - Terry Nofsinger gets his first starting assignment as an NFL quarterback here Sunday as the St. Louis Cardinals meet the Steelers at Pitt Stadium.

Nofsinger, a former Steeler, replaces Charley Johnson, who suffered torn knee ligaments last Sunday and underwent surgery two days later. He will be out for the rest of the season. Also sidelined for the Big Red is center Bob DeMarco, out about four weeks with ligament damage suffered in the same game.

The Cardinal coaching staff had no early-week decisions on activating players.

Nofsinger, a lanky, hard-throwing quarterback, came to the Cardinals in the spring of 1965 in a trade with the Steelers for Ken Kortas. He saw limited duty last season, with most of his action in the final game of the season, when he played the second half and completed eight of 20 passes, including one for a touchdown as he almost engineered an upset of Cleveland.

Prior to 1965, he was with the Steelers for four years, playing very sparingly. A native of Utah, he owns a master's degree in business administration from the University of Utah.

Last week's 20-17 victory over the Giants - first time in Cardinal history for two triumphs over the New Yorkers in one season - combined with losses to Dallas and Cleveland gave the Big Red a 11/ -game lead in the Eastern Division.

The Cardinals are 7-1-1, with Dallas second at 5-2-1 and the Browns third with 5-3. The half-game will disappear one way or another when the Cardinals have their bye in another week. The Big Red will be idle after the game in Pittsburgh, then play the Steelers again in St. Louis on Nov. 27.

Following that, the Cardinals go on to Dallas on Dec. 4, and to Atlanta on Dec. 11 before winding up the season at home against Cleveland on Dec. 17.

The loss of DeMarco moves Irv Goode into the No. 1 center role, a berth he filled with all-American ability in college. The guard posts depend upon the return to health of Ken Gray, who has missed four games with a bruised knee. If Gray is able to play, he will take over his regular right guard spot with Sortun at left guard. If Gray cannot go, Frank Roy probably will start in his place.

Defensively, the Cardinals are sound, and Larry Wilson has a shot at a mark unmatched in NFL history. The Big Red's weak side safety has intercepted passes in seven straight games, and one more would make him the NFL's all-time leader. At the moment, he shares the title with Washington's Paul Krause. Wilson also has run his career total to 29, one off the team record held by Dick (Night Train) Lane.

John Roland, bidding for NFL Rookie of the Year honors, paced the Big Red ball carriers with 78 yards in 23 attempts against the Giants. The Mizzou halfback has carried the ball 128 times, or slightly more than 14 times a game. Winding up the season at that average would give him just about 200 carries, more than any other ball carrier in Cardinal history. Ollie Matson in 1956 and John David Crow, in 1962, share the mark with 192 attempts each.

Jim Bakken's eight points against the Giants give him 68 for the season and 354 for his career, third highest in Big Red history and second-best among active players. Pat Harder holds the all-time record with 389 points. Sonny Randle is second with 360 and Bobby Joe Conrad fourth, one point behind Bakken.

Sunday's game starts at 12:30 p.m.

SEMO State Takes On Kirksville In Final MIAA Game

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. - Southeast Missouri State travels to Kirksville for a game with Northeast Missouri Teachers Saturday, hoping for both a rebound win and a miracle at Warrensburg.

The Indians were knocked from the undefeated ranks of MIAA teams last week by Southwest Missouri (4-0), the team which can clinch the title this week against Central Missouri (2-2) at Warrensburg. Playing against the rival Bulldogs of Kirksville (0-4), coach Kenny Knox's Tribe will be looking for at least clear title to second place, and hoping for the outside chance of a tie for the crown should Central Missouri upset Southwest Missouri.

"We've got to rebound and be ready for Kirksville," Knox said this week. "There has been an upset in the conference every week, and we have to win this one if we're to hope for a tie.

"Both teams have always played well against each other, and this should be an even game. We know that Kirksville has had some injuries that have hurt them, but they should be healthier now and will surely make one last attempt to regroup.

The Bulldogs of coach "Red" Wade, defending champs, have been the surprise of the year in losing all four of their conference games to date, following a successful pre-conference schedule. Injuries have apparently been the key factor.

The Bulldogs are paced by the MIAA's leading rusher, Sharron Washington, and by quarterback Rich Gorzynski and end John Newcomb, all named last year to the all-conference team.

Following last week's 16-0 loss to Rolla, Northeast is currently 3-5 for the season, and will be closing out its schedule Saturday against the Indians.

Southeast Missouri, 4-4 for the season and 3-1 in the MIAA, suffered a monumental disappointment at the hands of Springfield Saturday, dropping a 20-7 decision in what looks to have been the showdown battle for the championship.

Outbruised in a bruising contest, the Indians were stymied by what coaches felt was the best defensive opponent to date. Faced by a hard-charging Bear defensive line, quarterback Greg Brune, the leading passer in the MIAA, was able to connect for only 107 yards through the air, while the ground game was accounting for a minimal 61 yards.

Southeast's defensive effort in the game almost matched that of the bears, however, allowing 166 yards on the ground and 50 in the air, and blocking one punt that subsequently led to the lone Indian touchdown.

While Brune was upping his passing yardage to 1534 yards, halfback Walt Smallwood also added 49 yards against Springfield to his rushing total, moving up to 571 yards on 114 carries, maintaining his position of second in the conference.

Top receivers continue to be end Chuck Koerner with 576 yards and halfback John Diepenbrock with 493. Smallwood and end Glen Gibbons both have more than 200 yards in receptions.

Wilson Safety Blitzes Shaking Up Backfields

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

ST. LOUIS — (NEA) — Larry Frank Wilson might not be foolish enough to fly a plane down an enemy smokestack, but five years ago he originated a contiguous maneuver in football and got away with it. Still is getting away with it, as a matter of fact.

Larry, a free safety for the St. Louis Cardinals, took his lean body into territory never before invaded by a defensive back and in the process revolutionized defensive football.

You've heard of the safety blitz, right?

It was started on a mid-September afternoon in the opening game of the 1961 season when the Cardinals played New York. Because of injuries, their rush line was down to three able-bodied men. Chuck Drulis, the defensive strategist of the Cardinals then as now, devised the idea of implementing them by sending Wilson, a wiry 190-pounder, into the gap between tackle and end in a mad rush at the passer.

The act was heresy (not to mention lunacy) on two counts. The safety man in football is traditionally responsible for deep coverage and so shouldn't be up on the line of scrimmage. He also shouldn't be mingling with those 270-pound bruisers up front.

"It was quite an experience," recalls Larry. "They never touched me. I got through anywhere from six to 10 times. Their blocking wasn't set up for a safety blitz. Nobody was there to take me."

The job isn't exactly h rd-free under any conditions. Last year Larry played with two broken hands in the games against Pittsburgh and Chicago and still managed to cradle an interception in his two casts.

When he opens his mouth on the field, there is a gaping void from bicuspid to bicuspid in his upper jaw, a legacy from a collision in his rookie season of 1960.

The miracle of prosthesis transforms Larry to a presentable loan officer for a St. Louis savings and loan company when he's away from the football field. He's also the player representative of the Cardinals, a job he takes seriously. And, in his seventh year as a pro, recognition of his playing ability is finally accruing to the 28-year-old defensive leader of the Cardinals.

He had come to the Cardinals with a reputation as an offensive back at Utah.

"I lasted one day at that job as a pro," he says. "Then the Cardinals traded Night Train Lane, so they put me at corner back. In my first game, Raymond Berry of the Colts beat me for a touchdown, then caught another pass on the two-yard line. That was my career on the corner."

He found his niche as a safety, playing the weak side. ("I don't like to be called a free safety," says Larry. "I have specific coverage duty on every play. I also make the calls to the other backs as the play breaks.")

Charley Winner, the new St. Louis head coach and defensive secondary specialist by profession, calls Larry "a coach back there and a real leader who instills spirit by his own actions."

All-Star Coaches Begin Selection Of Players

ST. LOUIS -- From a list of 120 of the best high school football players in Missouri, Stub Muhl and Bob Davis, coaches for the North and South teams, respectively, in the Missouri State High School All-Star game Wednesday be in picking the players they want on their teams.

The first official members of the squad will be announced this weekend.

The game, presented by The Globe-Democrat on behalf of the Salvation Army Capital Fund Drive, will be played at Busch Stadium on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 3.

Each coach had been handed a list Tuesday of the outstanding players in the state. The list, assembled by The Globe-Democrat in consultation with sports writers and football experts around the state, included the names of players on teams from Shelbina in the north to Caruthersville in the south and from St. Louis in the east ot Kansas City in the west.

The two coaches met at lunch Wednesday at Musial and Biggie's restaurant to go over details of the game and to submit the names of the players they wanted to The Globe-Democrat. As soon as they named players, The Globe-Democrat immediately began checking out the availability of the athlete.

While both coaches have been deadly serious in their approach to the game, they haven't been above needling each other. They also indicated they'd been doing some scouting on their own while waiting for the list of eligibles to be handed to them.

"Pretty good list," Davis said, waving a sheaf of papers, "almost as good as the one I put together myself." He conceded though, that there were many names on the master list that had escaped him.

"I've been having trouble finding as many split ends as I'd like," he said. "Quite a few are playing basketball." Under Missouri High School Activities Association rules players engaging in winter sports are ineligible for the star game.

Muhl said he hadn't had any trouble finding split ends but thought he might be short an extra fullback. "I'll trade you one of my ends for one of your fullbacks," he offered Davis. The South coach, after brief study of the suggestion, turned it down.

"It's been an interesting research study," Coach Muhl added. "It's also a problem, trying to get a point of comparison. You hear about a 215-pound tackle out in some community in Missouri and your friends out there tell you he's real good. You wonder, though, if he's as good as a 190-pound tackle on some team here in town."

Davis agreed that this was a problem. "I've solved it to an extent by talking to people from a rival area. If a friend in Kirkwood, for instance, tells you that a boy on the Webster Groves team is real good, you'd better believe it."

The 33 players selected to each team will assemble in St. Louis on Wednesday evening, Nov. 23. Those whose teams are still active will not join the squads until Friday. They will work out through that Thanksgiving weekend, will return home for school work, then will reassemble here on Friday afternoon, Dec. 2.

R-5 Teachers, Parents Discuss Pupil Problems

MATTHEWS -- In observance of American Education Week parents of Matthews R-5 elementary school pupils were invited to schedule conferences with the teachers of their children.

With first quarter grade reports being made last week, parents and teachers can mutually benefit from reviewing samples of the child's work. A better understanding of each child's problems can enable them to help him in attaining his highest potential during the remainder of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Hodges and children of Canton visited during the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hodges and her brother- in - law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Clayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Yates visited during the weekend in Memphis, Tenn., and with her sister, Mrs. L. D. Youngblood, and family at Dundee, Miss.

Darrel Gaines of Fulton and a student at Missouri University, Columbia, visited during the weekend with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Reed.

The Christian Women's Fellowship will meet Thursday night, Nov. 16, at the home of Mrs. K. Stanley with Mrs. Dennis Parsons in charge of the program. The annual Thanksgiving fellowship dinner will be held at the church following the morning worship Nov. 20.

The date of the November meeting of the Matthews Community Club has been moved up to Nov. 16 because of conflict with Thanksgiving holidays. Mrs. Lyle Bird and Mrs. Carl Romines will be in charge of the program on community improvement to be held at the community center at 7:30. There will also be an election of officers for the coming year.

Ardie Burch, who has been a patient at the Ellis Fischel Hospital in Columbia for observation and diagnosis of a throat ailment, was released Wednesday. Burch's sons, Harold and Billy Morgan Burch, have been with him during his hospitalization.

Join the parade to:
THE SMOOTHEST WHISKY EVER TO COME OUT OF CANADA!

Now step up to Windsor Canadian: the remarkable, sippin'-smooth Canadian that's already changing thousands of Americans' ideas on the whisky to serve.

Tonight compare Windsor! Pour two drinks—highballs or over ice—one with your usual, one with Windsor Canadian. Notice the superior smoothness and the flavor of Windsor.

That's because no other custom-distilled whisky shares these three extraordinary features:

1. Only Windsor Canadian is made from choicest northern prairie grains, bursting with fresh flavor.
2. Only Windsor Canadian is born of icy mountain glacial water drawn clear from underground streams.
3. Only Windsor Canadian is aged in the incredibly dry air of Canada's Rockies. Where, nearly a mile high, it gentles to sippin'-smooth perfection.

Yet it costs no more than leading domestic whiskies, because we import Windsor Canadian, then bottle it here. Thus saving on duties and other charges. Compare the price and the smoothness of Windsor. Once you do, you'll never settle for less or pay more. Join the parade... tonight!

Big Red to Go With Nofsinger Sunday

PITTSBURGH - Terry Nofsinger gets his first starting assignment as an NFL quarterback here Sunday as the St. Louis Cardinals meet the Steelers at Pitt Stadium.

Nofsinger, a former Steeler, replaces Charley Johnson, who suffered torn knee ligaments last Sunday and underwent surgery two days later. He will be out for the rest of the season. Also sidelined for the Big Red is center Bob DeMarco, out about four weeks with ligament damage suffered in the same game.

The Cardinal coaching staff had no early-week decisions on activating players.

Nofsinger, a lanky, hard-throwing quarterback, came to the Cardinals in the spring of 1965 in a trade with the Steelers for Ken Kortas. Prior to 1965, he was with the Steelers for four years, playing very sparingly. A native of Utah, he owns a master's degree in business administration from the University of Utah.

Last week's 20-17 victory over the Giants - first time in Cardinal history for two triumphs over the New Yorkers in one season - combined with losses to Dallas and Cleveland gave the Big Red a 11/ -game lead in the Eastern Division.

The Cardinals are 7-1-1, with Dallas second at 5-2-1 and the Browns third with 5-3. The half-game will disappear one way or another when the Cardinals have their bye in another week. The Big Red will be idle after the game in Pittsburgh, then play the Steelers again in St. Louis on Nov. 27.

Following that, the Cardinals go on to Dallas on Dec. 4, and to Atlanta on Dec. 11 before winding up the season at home against Cleveland on Dec. 17.

The loss of DeMarco moves Irv Goode into the No. 1 center role, a berth he filled with all-American ability in college. The guard posts depend upon the return to health of Ken Gray, who has missed four games with a bruised knee. If Gray is able to play, he will take over his regular right guard spot with Sortun at left guard. If Gray cannot go, Frank Roy probably will start in his place.

Wilson also has run his career total to 29, one off the team record held by Dick (Night Train) Lane.

John Roland, bidding for NFL Rookie of the Year honors, paced the Big Red ball carriers with 78 yards in 23 attempts against the Giants. The Mizzou halfback has carried the ball 128 times, or slightly more than 14 times a game. Winding up the season at that average would give him just about 200 carries, more than any other ball carrier in Cardinal history. Ollie Matson in 1956 and John David Crow, in 1962, share the mark with 192 attempts each.

Jim Bakken's eight points against the Giants give him 68 for the season and 354 for his career, third highest in Big Red history and second-best among active players. Pat Harder holds the all-time record with 389 points. Sonny Randle is second with 360 and Bobby Joe Conrad fourth, one point behind Bakken.

SEMO State Takes On Kirksville In Final MIAA Game

CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO. - Southeast Missouri State travels to Kirksville for a game with Northeast Missouri Teachers Saturday, hoping for both a rebound win and a miracle at Warrensburg.

The Indians were knocked from the undefeated ranks of MIAA teams last week by Southwest Missouri (4-0), the team which can clinch the title this week against Central Missouri (2-2) at Warrensburg. Playing against the rival Bulldogs of Kirksville (0-4), coach Kenny Knox's Tribe will be looking for at least clear title to second place, and hoping for the outside chance of a tie for the crown should Central Missouri upset Southwest Missouri.

R-5 Teachers, Parents Discuss Pupil Problems

MATTHEWS -- In observance of American Education Week parents of Matthews R-5 elementary school pupils were invited to schedule conferences with the teachers of their children.

With first quarter grade reports being made last week, parents and teachers can mutually benefit from reviewing samples of the child's work. A better understanding of each child's problems can enable them to help him in attaining his highest potential during the remainder of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Hodges and children of Canton visited during the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hodges and her brother- in - law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Clayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Yates visited during the weekend in Memphis, Tenn., and with her sister, Mrs. L. D. Youngblood, and family at Dundee, Miss.

Darrel Gaines of Fulton and a student at Missouri University, Columbia, visited during the weekend with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Reed.

The Christian Women's Fellowship will meet Thursday night, Nov. 16, at the home of Mrs. K. Stanley with Mrs. Dennis Parsons in charge of the program. The annual Thanksgiving fellowship dinner will be held at the church following the morning worship Nov. 20.

The date of the November meeting of the Matthews Community Club has been moved up to Nov. 16 because of conflict with Thanksgiving holidays. Mrs. Lyle Bird and Mrs. Carl Romines will be in charge of the program on community improvement to be held at the community center at 7:30. There will also be an election of officers for the coming year.

Ardie Burch, who has been a patient at the Ellis Fischel Hospital in Columbia for observation and diagnosis of a throat ailment, was released Wednesday. Burch's sons, Harold and Billy Morgan Burch, have been with him during his hospitalization.

Wilson Safety Blitzes Shaking Up Backfields

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

ST. LOUIS—(NEA)—Larry Frank Wilson might not be foolish enough to fly a plane down an enemy smokestack, but five years ago he originated a contiguous maneuver in football and got away with it. Still is getting away with it, as a matter of fact.

Larry, a free safety for the St. Louis Cardinals, took his lean body into territory never before invaded by a defensive back and in the process revolutionized defensive football.

You've heard of the safety blitz, right?

It was started on a mid-September afternoon in the opening game of the 1961 season when the Cardinals played New York. Because of injuries, their rush line was down to three able-bodied men. Chuck Drulis, the defensive strategist of the Cardinals then as now, devised the idea of implementing them by sending Wilson, a wiry 190-pounder, into the gap between tackle and end in a mad rush at the passer.

The act was heresy (not to mention lunacy) on two counts. The safety man in football is traditionally responsible for deep coverage and so shouldn't be up on the line of scrimmage. He also shouldn't be mingling with those 270-pound bruisers up front.

"It was quite an experience," recalls Larry. "They never touched me. I got through anywhere from six to 10 times. Their blocking wasn't set up for a safety blitz. Nobody was there to take me."

The job isn't exactly h rd-free under any conditions. Last year Larry played with two broken hands in the games against Pittsburgh and Chicago and still managed to cradle an interception in his two casts.

When he opens his mouth on the field, there is a gaping void from bicuspid to bicuspid in his upper jaw, a legacy from a collision in his rookie season of 1960.

The miracle of prosthesis transforms Larry to a presentable loan officer for a St. Louis savings and loan company when he's away from the football field. He's also the player representative of the Cardinals, a job he takes seriously. And, in his seventh year as a pro, recognition of his playing ability is finally accruing to the 28-year-old defensive leader of the Cardinals.

He had come to the Cardinals with a reputation as an offensive back at Utah.

"I lasted one day at that job as a pro," he says. "Then the Cardinals traded Night Train Lane, so they put me at corner back. In my first game, Raymond Berry of the Colts beat me for a touchdown, then caught another pass on the two-yard line. That was my career on the corner."

He found his niche as a safety, playing the weak side. ("I don't like to be called a free safety," says Larry. "I have specific coverage duty on every play. I also make the calls to the other backs as the play breaks.")

Charley Winner, the new St. Louis head coach and defensive secondary specialist by profession, calls Larry "a coach back there and a real leader who instills spirit by his own actions."

All-Star Coaches Begin Selection Of Players

ST. LOUIS -- From a list of 120 of the best high school football players in Missouri, Stub Muhl and Bob Davis, coaches for the North and South teams, respectively, in the Missouri State High School All-Star game Wednesday be n picking the players they w nt on their teams.

The first official members of the squad will be announced this weekend.

The game, presented by The Globe-Democrat on behalf of the Salvation Army Capital Fund Drive, will be played at Busch Stadium on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 3.

Each coach had been handed a list Tuesday of the outstanding players in the state. The list, assembled by The Globe-Democrat in consultation with sports writers and football experts around the state, included the names of players on teams from Shelbina in the north to Caruthersville in the south and from St. Louis in the east ot Kansas City in the west.

The two coaches met at lunch Wednesday at Musial and Biggie's restaurant to go over details of the game and to submit the names of the players they wanted to The Globe-Democrat. As soon as they named players, The Globe-Democrat immediately began checking out the availability of the athlete.

While both coaches have been deadly serious in their approach to the game, they haven't been above needling each other. They also indicated they'd been doing some scouting on their own while waiting for the list of eligibles to be handed to them.

"Pretty good list," Davis said, waving a sheaf of papers, "almost as good as the one I put together myself." He conceded though, that there were many names on the master list that had escaped him.

"I've been having trouble finding as many split ends as I'd like," he said. "Quite a few are playing basketball." Under Missouri High School Activities Association rules players engaging in winter sports are ineligible for the star game.

Muhl said he hadn't had any trouble finding split ends but thought he might be short an extra fullback. "I'll trade you one of my ends for one of your fullbacks," he offered Davis. The South coach, after brief study of the suggestion, turned it down.

"It's been an interesting research study," Coach Muhl added. "It's also a problem, trying to get a point of comparison. You hear about a 215-pound tackle out in some community in Missouri and your friends out there tell you he's real good. You wonder, though, if he's as good as a 190-pound tackle on some team here in town."

Davis agreed that this was a problem. "I've solved it to an extent by talking to people from a rival area. If a friend in Kirkwood, for instance, tells you that a boy on the Webster Groves team is real good, you'd better believe it."

The 33 players selected to each team will assemble in St. Louis on Wednesday evening, Nov. 23. Those whose teams are still active will not join the squads until Friday. They will work out through that Thanksgiving weekend, will return home for school work, then will reassemble here on Friday afternoon, Dec. 2.

CANADIAN WHISKY—A BLEND · 80 PROOF · IMPORTED BY NATIONAL DISTILLERS PRODUCTS CO. NEW YORK

Join the parade to:
THE SMOOTHEST WHISKY EVER TO COME OUT OF CANADA!

Now step up to Windsor Canadian: the remarkable, sippin'-smooth Canadian that's already changing thousands of Americans' ideas on the whisky to serve.

Tonight compare Windsor! Pour two drinks—highballs or over ice—one with your usual, one with Windsor Canadian. Notice the superior smoothness and the flavor of Windsor.

That's because no other custom-distilled whisky shares these three extraordinary features:

1. Only Windsor Canadian is made from choicest northern prairie grains, bursting with fresh flavor.
2. Only Windsor Canadian is born of icy mountain glacial water drawn clear from underground streams.
3. Only Windsor Canadian is aged in the incredibly dry air of Canada's Rockies. Where, nearly a mile high, it gentles to sippin'-smooth perfection.

Yet it costs no more than leading domestic whiskies, because we import Windsor Canadian, then bottle it here. Thus saving on duties and other charges. Compare the price and the smoothness of Windsor. Once you do, you'll never settle for less or pay more. Join the parade... tonight!

Caruthersville Bridge Hearing Expected Soon

CARUTHERSVILLE -- A review of the plans for the proposed Mississippi River bridge at Caruthersville should be completed within the next three weeks by the Corps of Engineers at Memphis, it was learned this week.

Col. James A. Vivian, district engineer, said, "The study of plans for the bridge at Caruthersville is almost complete. Barring complications, the plans should go on to the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of the Army this month."

A public hearing on the bridge, slated for construction just south of Caruthersville at a point near Kinfolk Ridge, was held in September.

At that time navigation interests joined in united protests as to the bridge dimensions. They claimed the spans were not wide enough for safe navigation and asked that modifications be made to lengthen the spans.

Designers of the bridge, Sverdrup and Parcel of St. Louis, as well as the highway departments of Missouri and Tennessee defended the bridge span lengths and added that different type of design would be necessary in order to get wider spans.

Col. Vivian went on to say, "Additional model studies were necessary in connection with the size and capacity of the over-bank openings for flood flow through the roadway fill. The tests are being made at the model testing laboratory of the Waterways Experiment station at Vicksburg, Miss.

"Because of the need to forward the plans for approval as soon as possible, the experiment station director has cooperated by scheduling them ahead of other work previously planned for this period," the Colonel continued.

Colonel Vivian gave no indication as to what his recommendation on the bridge plans would be. Prior to the hearing the two highway departments revised the plans to get the maximum span length from the proposed bridge design. They had hoped this would solve the difference with navigation interests.

The proposed Caruthersville Bridge, slated to be completed before 1972 with hopes of being ready in 1970, will carry Interstate Route 155, an east west link between I-55 and I-40.

There was no estimate as to how long a review of the plans in Washington will take.

Biotron Helps Man Study Environment

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —In a $5-million building here, scientists maintained a honeycomb of 48 rooms where sound, heat, light, humidity, and wind and the rain soon will be mere puppets of a computer.

Known as the Biotron the complex will help in the study of man's environment on earth—and what he may find on Mars or the moon.

In the Biotron, a woodland pond may be separated by a wall from a simulated bit of lunar landscape. A miniature tropical rain forest one moment can be quickly altered to Sahara-dry conditions the next-or perhaps pumped full of smog.

Head of the Biotron, Harold A. Senn, calls his work "the science of the next decade."

"Today," says Senn, "there is an increasing awareness of the problems of man's relation to his environment. Not only is there the problem of pollution, but there is also the concern with space exploration. We will be able to conduct studies in both these areas with biotron facilities."

The Biotron, unique in science, according to officials, will open at the end of this year. While basic research likely will be concerned with the life and growth of animals and plants in various climates controlled by the scientists, such problems as air pollution and living on other planets also will be examined.

"We can program the computer to add different gases to the air in some of the rooms, and so we can simulate atmospheric pollution to a degree," Senn said.

In space research, the Biotron can be used to simulate the conditions astronauts might find in the cabin of a space capsule or under a domed enclosure on the moon or Mars.

Big Girl Fashion Campaign Blossoms

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) -- June Webb, 27, is big, with big ideas about big things.

Weighing 232 pounds, and standing just under 6 feet, she is the founding member of the Big Girls Club, an organization that is campaigning to improve clothes for outsized women and girls.

"Fat women want to look pretty, too," said the blue-eyed mother of two children, "but we're condemned to wearing drab colors and atrocious designs."

A gale of a sigh rippled over her 56-54-57 frame.

"God knows we don't want to wear miniskirts, but we would like to be just a bit fashionable."

A soft-voiced, gentle and happy woman, she added: "Getting the right size is not today's main problem. There are lots of shops — but not too many — catering for the big woman. The nightmare is styling. You just can't get young clothes in my size."

Years of searching for pretty clothes have convinced her that the designers have only women middle-aged to older in mind when they make dresses for the biggies.

"Psychologically, it's so disheartening for us," she said. "Most dresses seem to be modeled by slim women with narrow hips. We have to go into the shops and ask, 'Do you have this dress in six sizes larger?' That's bad."

She shook her blonde head and added: 'Shopping is a real chore for the big girl. It's not just dresses. It's underwear, coats, night dresses, stockings. The stockings are always too short."

Wouldn't it be easier to go on a diet?

"It might be easier," replied Mrs. Webb, "but it's not what I want to do. I'm very happy with my size, thank you, and so is my husband. He says he wouldn't have me any other way.

"I was big when he married me, and, well, I certainly haven't lost any weight, and I don't intent to. My health's all right, and we're a happy family. Weight is not my problem. Clothes are the problem."

Last month Mrs. Webb decided to do something about clothes for the big girl.

"I've thought about this situation for a long while," she said. "Then, just recently, I realized that my own daughter, Alison, is growing up, and that there's a whole new generation with a problem like mine. I decided to do something."

Alison, 9, weighs 140. Mrs. Webb's son, Julian, is a big boy, about the usual weight for his age.

"My husband is tall and thin," laughed the organizer of the Big Girls Club. "He eats more than any of us, but he never gets fat."

Webb is a seafaring man, working on one of the bigliners that come to and go from Southampton.

"All of a sudden it came to me that no one is really doing anything about trying to get well-designed, pretty clothes for big girls," explained Mrs. wEbb. "That's when I went into action."

She took the bus down to her local newspaper.

"I'm a great believer in newspapers," she said. "They can be of such help in so many matters."

An editor assigned a reporter to interview her.

"She was very young, very pretty, and very slim with a beautiful figure," said Mrs. Webb. "When I saw her, my heart sank, for I thought my cause was lost before I started. But this was not the case. She put a little piece in the paper, and then things began happening."

Mrs. Webb began receiving telephone calls and letters. Soon her club had more than 200 members in Britain.

Indicative of interest in the Big Girls Cub, a local store organized a fashion show in which five club members agreed to model.

The store planned for an audience of 200.

When more than 2,000 persons — mostly women — wrote in for tickets, the show had to be moved to a hotel ballroom.

USE ARTIFICIAL LIGHT ON HOUSE PLANTS

Use artificial light to grow better house plants. Place your plants under fluorescent tubes. A Pennsylvania State University correspondence course tells you how.

Have fluorescent tubes in movable or permanent fixtures. Fastened to the lower side of an unused bookshelf, tubes give light to plants placed on the next lower shelf. A single tube seldom gives enough light. Mount a number parallel. Paint the shelves white to increase reflected light.

Set up fluorescent light units in your main living room. Hallways and closets are good. Basements are excellent if not too cool.

Commercial lighting units are available for indoor gardening. Some come as enclosed cases with doors to control temperature and humidity. Moveable carts, equipped with fluorescent fixtures and trays, in decks one above the other, are on the market.

Study the correspondence course to learn more about care of plants indoors. Send your name and address with $3.00 to House Plants, Box 5000, University Park, Pennsylvania 16802. A course copy will come to you by mail.

American Message Not Getting Through in Egypt

By GARVEN HUDGINS

CAIRO (AP) — The American message on Viet Nam is being ignored or is not getting across in Cairo, one of the major capitals with ties to both East and West.

Official statements on Viet Nam and editorials in the government-controlled press invariably call on the United States to withdraw. There is no mention of reciprocal withdrawals by North Vietnamese forces the United States claims have infiltrated the south.

Nor is there any equation made between the somewhat analogous situation in which Egypt finds itself. Some 50,000 of its troops are in Yemen to support the republican regime of President Abdullah al-Sallal.

The apparent mistrust of U.S. motives seems to go beyond traditional resentment of U.S. policy toward Israel and to rest on a basic suspicion.

Egyptians, many of them young university graduates who presumably will play major roles in shaping this country's future, accuse the United States of being behind virtually every government turnover in the world that does not happen to come up leftist.

Some educated Egyptians argue passionately that the United States seeks to dominate the world through economic and military aid, which they claim is never given without strings attached.

Talking about the lapse of the last U.S. food-for-peace grant in June — an agreement which has not been renewed despite Egyptian requests for a new, long-term deal — a qualified Egyptian source said: "How can the United States link politics with bread? When the United States involves political pressure with wheat, I have to think: 'This is my bread you're talking about'."

Actually, the United States has not closed the door on wheat allocations. But new legislation in Washington basically has changed the old food-for-peace program under which wheat was supplied for 10 years through soft-currency agreements.

COMPLETE OVEN dinner includes spaghetti meat loaf, frozen corn and green beans cooked in foil packets, and a baked chocolate pudding made with a chocolate pudding mix. Substantial and very satisfying fare!

Spaghetti Meat Loaf Completes Oven Dinner

Here are some new ideas to try and to treasure for your recipe file of good oven dinners.

Entree is "Spaghetti Meat Loaf" which is a ground beef mixture sandwiched with a layer of cooked spaghetti. Both of the meat layers and the spaghetti layer are seasoned and sauced with canned tomato sauce with cheese. That's the tomato sauce product which has Romano cheese and a blend of Italian herbs and spices simmered into it.

A kind of succotash--a package of whole kernel corn and a package of frozen green beans--are basil-buttered and sealed in foil packets and baked alongside the meat loaf. Also in the oven are baked chocolate puddings made with a chocolate pudding mix.

The meat loaf takes a little longer to get done than the vegetables and pudding so time the foods in and out of the oven accordingly.

Add a needed crisp touch to the meal by serving celery or carrot sticks.

SPAGHETTI MEAT LOAF
1-1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 Tablesp. chopped green pepper
1-1/2 teasp. seasoned salt
1/4 teasp. pepper
2 (8-oz.) cans tomato sauce with cheese
2-1/2 cups cooked spaghetti
1/2 teasp. salt
3 slices Cheddar cheese

Combine first 6 ingredients with 1/4 can tomato sauce with cheese; pack half of mixture in loaf pan. Toss cooked spaghetti with 3/4 can tomato sauce with cheese and salt. Palce spaghetti on top of meat mixture in loaf pan. Top with remaining meat mixture. Chill about 1 hour. Turn out on shallow baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour. Remove excess fat. Arrange cheese slices across top of loaf. Pour remaining can of tomato sauce with cheese over all. Bake an additional 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

BANANA BROWNIE PUDDING
1 egg
1-1/2 cups milk
1 (4-oz.) pkg. chocolate pudding mix
1 cup mashed bananas
1/2 cup chopped pecans
Whipped cream

Beat egg; add milk, bananas and pudding mix and beat well. Stir in pecans. Pour into individual ramekins. Bake at 350 degrees F., 35 minutes. Serve warm or cold with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

Broiler Fryers With a Zing

If your family's tired of barbecued, fried and roasted chicken, spruce up those dragging, "Dog Days" appetities by adding a spicy touch to your next chicken.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture suggests you begin your "chicken with a difference" campaign by preparing CHICKEN FRANCAISE. Sprinkle chicken with salt, paprika and pepper. Melt butter in skillet and brown chicken in butter. Add mushroom liquid to skillet; and sprinkle chicken with savory, thyme, marjoram and basil, a pinch of each; then cover skillet and simmer 45 minutes. Baste chicken several times during cooking, adding a small amount of water when skillet is partially reduced. Add mushrooms during last 10 minutes of cooking.

For another dish with that slightly different approach, try SPANISH CHICKEN. Sprinkle chicken with 1 tsp. of salt, paprika and pepper. Heat oil in skillet and brown chicken in it. Remove and place in baking dish with tight lid. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender but not brown, then add to chicken. Stir pea liquid and bouillon into skillet, scraping brown particles from pan. Then add remaining 1/4 tsp. salt and saffron; bring to a boil and pour over chicken. Stir rice into chicken until it is moistened. Cover dish tightly and bake in 350 degree oven, 25 minutes. Uncover dish, then stir in peas and pimento. Re-cover and bake 10 minutes longer.

Remember, broiler - fryers are in plentiful supply right now -- a good time to delight your family with one of these flavorful recipes.

A Pie By Any Other Name

It is a Pie? Tart? Tarte? or Flan? What do you call an open or single crust pastry in your house?

Actually, there's really not much difference. Tarte, tart, and flan are often used interchangeably in England and France to designate a pastry filled fruit, jam, custard or some other filling. In the United States, the term most often used is open or single crusted "pie," while a tart is the name for a miniature pie. The French call this little pastry a tartelette.

In the U.S., almost all such dishes are cooked and served in a pie dish. However, in England and France, a metal flan or pastry ring, placed on a metal baking sheet, is most often used as a base for the tart or flan. For these pastries, as with American pies, the type of pastry used may be short, ordinary pastry, sweet pastry, semi-flaky pastry, or a puff pastry. These crusts may be baked empty and filled later; or the filling and crush can be baked together.

No matter what it's called or how it's made -- a pastry crust filled with a satisfying bright red tart cherry sauce is sure to be a hit with your family. With the plentiful supplies reported on the market by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, you'll find good reason to feature them often in your October menus.

RECIPES

CHERRY PIE
Pie pastry for double crust 9-inch pie
1 no. 2 can frozen cherries
3/4 c. sugar
1 1/2 tblsp. butter or margarine
5 tblsp. all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. cinnamon

Roll out dough for double-crust pie, fit bottom layer into pan. In sauce pan, place frozen cherries. Combine flour, sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle over cherries. Melt cherries over low heat, blending in dry ingredients. When cherries have thawed, turn heat to medium setting. Stirring frequently with fork, continue cooking until thickened. Remove from heat. Cool slightly before pouring into unbaked pie shell. Dot with butter or margarine. Add top crust and seal edges. Bake in 450 degrees oven about 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 400 degrees and continue baking about 35 to 45 minutes or until nicely browned.

CHERRY FLAN
For Crust:
1/2 c. sugar
1/2 lb. butter
1 large egg
1 c. flour
For Filling:
1 1/2 c. cherries, drained
1 1/2 c. cherry juice plus water
2 tblsp. cornstarch
Sugar to taste
Whipped cream, sweetened

For Crust - Cream sugar and butter; beat in egg. Scrape down bowl; add flour. Mix at low speed until blended. Roll out lightly on floured surface to 14 inch diameter. Place inside 10-inch spring pan. Turn up sides to form edge. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes, or until golden brown.

For filling - Heat juice to boiling, reserving 1/2 c. to mix with cornstarch. Stir cornstarch-juice paste into heated juice; cook until thickened. Add cherries; sweeten. Cool and pour into baked shell. Top with whipped cream.

CHERRY TART
For Crust:
1 1/4 c. sifted regular all-purpose flour
1/4 c. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 c. (1 stick) butter or margarine
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 tsp. vanilla
For Filling:
1 Pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese softened
1/2 c. sifted confectioners' sugar
1 tsp. lemon juice, or 1/2 tsp. vanilla
2 tblsp. milk
For Topping:
1 Can (1 lb. 4 oz.) frozen sweetened, pitted red tart cherries, thawed
1/3 c. sugar
2 tblsp. cornstarch
1/4 tsp. almond extract
1/8 tsp. ground cloves
2 tblsp. toasted slivered almonds.

For Crust - Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Sift together flour, sugar and salt. Cut in butter until mixture is like cornmeal. Add yolks and vanilla; mix just until a soft dough is formed. Press over bottom and sides of 9-inch spring form pan. Bake about 25 minutes. Loosen crust from side of pan with knife while still hot; then cool crust in pan.

For filling - beat cream cheese until smooth; mix in sugar, lemon juice or vanilla and milk and continue beating until smooth and fluffy. Spread over bottom of crust. Chill.

For Topping - Drain juice from cherries and add water as necessary to bring liquid measure to 1/4 cup. Place juice in saucepan. Combine sugar and cornstarch and stir into juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until clear and thickened. Stir in cherries, almond extract and cloves; cool. Spoon topping over filling. Sprinkle with almonds. Chill until serving time.

CONCORDS: COMMON LUXURY

The old masters often denoted richness and luxury in their artwork by strategic placement of a colorful cluster of grapes -- perhaps in a royal purple for emphasis.

But grapes are far from being a luxury item today. The royally - hued Concord, for example, is a "commoner", suitable for a multitude of uses.

One of the most important midwestern and eastern varieties, the blue - black Concord is used often as a table grape. There are folks who prize it for pie - making, too.

However, most Concords go into juice, jelly and preserves--both commercially and at home. Their special ability to retain that natural fresh fruit flavor accounts for this in large part, explains the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

See for yourself, by trying this USDA recipe for GRAPE CONSERVE -- and enjoy the seeming luxury of grape goodness throughout the coming year.

GRAPE CONSERVE
4-1/2 cups, grapes, skins removed (about 4 lbs. Concords)
1 orange
4 cups sugar
1 cup seedless raisins
1/2 teaspoon salt
Skins from grapes
1 cup nuts, chopped fine

Sort and wash grapes; remore from stems. Slip off skins and save. Measure skinned grapes into a kettle and boil, stirring constantly, about 10 minutes, or until the seeds show. Press through a sieve to remove seeds. Chop the orange finely WITHOUT PEELING. Add the orange, sugar, raisins and salt to sieved grapes. Boil rapidly, stirring consantly, until mixture begins to thicken (about 10 minutes). Add grape skins and boil, stirring constantly, to 9 degrees F. above the boiling point of water (about 10 minutes). Do not overcook. Add nuts and stir well. Remove from heat; skin and stir alternately for 5 minutes. Ladle conserve into hot glasses and seal immediately with 1/8-inch layer of melted paraffin. Makes 10 to 11 six- ounce glasses.

COMPLETE OVEN dinner includes spaghetti meat loaf, frozen corn and green beans cooked in foil packets, and a baked chocolate pudding made with a chocolate pudding mix. Substantial and very satisfying fare!

Spaghetti Meat Loaf Completes Oven Dinner

Here are some new ideas to try and to treasure for your recipe file of good oven dinners.

Entree is "Spaghetti Meat Loaf" which is a ground beef mixture sandwiched with a layer of cooked spaghetti. Both of the meat layers and the spaghetti layer are seasoned and sauced with canned tomato sauce with cheese. That's the tomato sauce product which has Romano cheese and a blend of Italian herbs and spices simmered into it.

A kind of succotash--a package of whole kernel corn and a package of frozen green beans--are basil-buttered and sealed in foil packets and baked alongside the meat loaf. Also in the oven are baked chocolate puddings made with a chocolate pudding mix.

The meat loaf takes a little longer to get done than the vegetables and pudding so time the foods in and out of the oven accordingly.

Add a needed crisp touch to the meal by serving celery or carrot sticks.

SPAGHETTI MEAT LOAF
1-1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 Tablesp. chopped green pepper
1-1/2 teasp. seasoned salt
1/4 teasp. pepper
2 (8-oz.) cans tomato sauce with cheese
2-1/2 cups cooked spaghetti
1/2 teasp. salt
3 slices Cheddar cheese

Combine first 6 ingredients with 1/4 can tomato sauce with cheese; pack half of mixture in loaf pan. Toss cooked spaghetti with 3/4 can tomato sauce with cheese and salt. Palce spaghetti on top of meat mixture in loaf pan. Top with remaining meat mixture. Chill about 1 hour. Turn out on shallow baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour. Remove excess fat. Arrange cheese slices across top of loaf. Pour remaining can of tomato sauce with cheese over all. Bake an additional 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

BANANA BROWNIE PUDDING
1 egg
1-1/2 cups milk
1 (4-oz.) pkg. chocolate pudding mix
1 cup mashed bananas
1/2 cup chopped pecans
Whipped cream

Beat egg; add milk, bananas and pudding mix and beat well. Stir in pecans. Pour into individual ramekins. Bake at 350 degrees F., 35 minutes. Serve warm or cold with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

Broiler Fryers With a Zing

If your family's tired of barbecued, fried and roasted chicken, spruce up those dragging, "Dog Days" appetities by adding a spicy touch to your next chicken.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture suggests you begin your "chicken with a difference" campaign by preparing CHICKEN FRANCAISE. Sprinkle chicken with salt, paprika and pepper. Melt butter in skillet and brown chicken in butter. Add mushroom liquid to skillet; and sprinkle chicken with savory, thyme, marjoram and basil, a pinch of each; then cover skillet and simmer 45 minutes. Baste chicken several times during cooking, adding a small amount of water when skillet is partially reduced. Add mushrooms during last 10 minutes of cooking.

For another dish with that slightly different approach, try SPANISH CHICKEN. Sprinkle chicken with 1 tsp. of salt, paprika and pepper. Heat oil in skillet and brown chicken in it. Remove and place in baking dish with tight lid. Add onion to skillet and cook until tender but not brown, then add to chicken. Stir pea liquid and bouillon into skillet, scraping brown particles from pan. Then add remaining 1/4 tsp. salt and saffron; bring to a boil and pour over chicken. Stir rice into chicken until it is moistened. Cover dish tightly and bake in 350 degree oven, 25 minutes. Uncover dish, then stir in peas and pimento. Re-cover and bake 10 minutes longer.

A Pie By Any Other Name

It is a Pie? Tart? Tarte? or Flan? What do you call an open or single crust pastry in your house?

Actually, there's really not much difference. Tarte, tart, and flan are often used interchangeably in England and France to designate a pastry filled fruit, jam, custard or some other filling. In the United States, the term most often used is open or single crusted "pie," while a tart is the name for a miniature pie. The French call this little pastry a tartelette.

In the U.S., almost all such dishes are cooked and served in a pie dish. However, in England and France, a metal flan or pastry ring, placed on a metal baking sheet, is most often used as a base for the tart or flan. For these pastries, as with American pies, the type of pastry used may be short, ordinary pastry, sweet pastry, semi-flaky pastry, or a puff pastry. These crusts may be baked empty and filled later; or the filling and crush can be baked together.

No matter what it's called or how it's made -- a pastry crust filled with a satisfying bright red tart cherry sauce is sure to be a hit with your family. With the plentiful supplies reported on the market by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, you'll find good reason to feature them often in your October menus.

BLYTHEVILLE AIR FORCE BASE, ARK. Colonel George H. McKee (right), 97th Bomb Wing commander, presents the $9,524.98 United Fund check to Mr. J. M. (Mac) Williams (second from left), chairman of the Blytheville United Fund drive. The check was Blytheville AFB's contribution to the United Fund campaign. Also taking part in the Friday ceremony in Colonel McKee's office was Mr. Charles Mosley (second from right), president of the Blytheville United Fund and Lieutenant Colonel Arthur R. Chadbourne, Blytheville AFB United Fund project chairman.

BLYTHEVILLE AIR FORCE BASE, ARK., -- Blytheville AFB exceeded its established $9,524 United Fund goal this year by contributing 98 cents more than that amount to the campaign.

Colonel George H. McKee, 97th Bomb Wing commander, turned over the check to Mr. J. M. (Mac) Williams, chairman of the Blytheville United Fund Drive in a ceremony Friday morning. Also on hand for the ceremony were Mr. Charles Mosley, president of the Blytheville United Fund and Lieutenant Colonel Arthur R. Chadbourne, Blythevillle AFB United Fund chairman.

This year's contribution by Blytheville AFB personnel was more than last year's efforts. Last year the base contributed $9,388.72.

Colonel McKee praised the work done during this year's drive by Colonel Chadbourne and other key personnel when he said: "The overall project officer (Colonel Chadbourne) and his unit and agency project officers did a fine job in meeting our United Fund goal."

Ten organizations on the base exceeded their established dollar goals, according to Colonel Chadbourne. They were: Headquarters, 42d Air Division; Headquarters Squadron, 97th Bomb Wing; 340th Bomb Squadron; 97th Air Refueling Squadron; 97th Airborne Missile Maintenance Squadron; 97th Field Maintenance Squadron; 97th Services Squadron; Detachment 14, 26th Weather Squadron; 303C Field Training Detachment and the base exchange.

Four other organizations reached their established dollar goals. They were: 97th Armament and Electronics Maintenance Squadron; 65th Munitions Maintenance Squadron; 97th Transportation Squadron and the Auditor General.

This is the second consecutive year that some of the money taken in during the drive will be used to support base activities.

The money will also help support the YMCA (Young Men's Christian Association), Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, Library, United Service Organization and the American Social Health Association.

Armed Forces

James Gwaltney

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. -- Airman James A. Gwaltney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Gwaltney of Rt. 2, Sikeston, Mo., has been selected for technical training at Lackland AFB, Tex., as a U. S. Air Force air policeman.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland. His new school is part of the Air Training Command which conducts hundreds of specialized courses to provide technically trained personnel for the nation's aerospace force.

Airman Gwaltney, a graduate of Thomas W. Kelly High School, Benton, Mo., attended Southeast Missouri State College.

DA NANG, VIETNAM (FHTNC) -- Boatswain's Mate Second Class George W. Hoots, USN, son of Mrs. Effie E. Hoots of Route 14, Sikeston, Mo., has reported for duty at the Naval Support Activity in Da Nang, Viet Nam.

The activity was established to meet increased requirements for combat logistic support of operations in Viet Nam. Approximately 3,500 Navy officers and men are being assigned to the activity.

Their tasks will include offloading ships and handling supplies from razor blades to roadgraders, aircraft fuel and lubricants, and provisions of all kinds, through the port of Da Nang and over beaches from the demilitarized zone in the north to Chu Lai in the south.

CHERRY POINT, N. C. (FHTNC) -- Marine Captain Abram J. Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Jackson Hunter of Oakwood Farms, Sikeston, Mo., is serving with Marine Air Base Squadron (MABS) -14 of Marine Aircraft Group (MAG) -- 14. MAG-14 is a unit of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing (MAW) located at Cherry Point, N. C. Marine Corps Air Station.

MABS-- 14's personnel handle the administrative, motor transport, utilities, communications and other vital sections for the aircraft group.

The Second MAW is ready to give air support to the Second Marine Division or any unit of Fleet Marine Force Atlantic, wherever future commitments dictate.

Pfc. George Bartlett, who has been stationed with the armed forces at Blytheville the past year, in the radio department, spent last week-end here with his mother, Mrs. Nettie Bartlett.

Lt. W. M. Sidwell returned to Camp Atterbury in Indiana yesterday after a 10-day leave which he spent with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. I. Sidwell. Lt. Sidwell, who has been in the service of his country nearly two years, was recently transferred from the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Clinic to the Mobile Optical Unit in the 27th Medical Depot at the same camp.

Ray A. Moll, machinist mate first class with the U.S. Navy, came Tuesday for a visit of two weeks with his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Moll. During four years of service with his country, this is the young man's first visit home in three years. Last July 4, while in Australia, he met and visited with Ben F. Carroll Jr., another Sikeston youth who was there on duty with the armed forces. Following his visit here, Moll will enter a machinist's school in Washington D. C., for further training.

Jack Lancaster received a message from his brother, Tom Lancaster, yesterday stating that he was en route from Hawaii to Sikeston for a brief visit with the former and his wife. Lancaster, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lancaster of St. Louis, will visit them during his furlough in the states.

Howard Wilson, a U.S. Marine who recently visited his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Marshall, and who left here the latter part of October, has arrived safely at his post somewhere near Hawaii.

Capt. Harry C. Young Jr., who had been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Young, left Tuesday for San Antonio, Texas, where he will be stationed the next two months with the Army Air corps. Mrs. Young, who had been residing with her mother, Mrs. S. J. Reynolds, in Cape Girardeau accompanied him.

Man Fights Loss of U.S. Citizenship

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Polish-born Beys Afroyim emigrated to the United States in 1912. He was 19.

Thirteen years later, he realized a dream held by hundreds of thousands of refugees to these shores: he became an American citizen by naturalization.

Today at age 73, however, Afroyim is no longer a citizen, although he claims allegiance to the United States. The reason is that while in Israel in 1951, he voted in an election for the Knesset, Israel's legislative body.

Afroyim's situation is by no means unique.

From 1961 through 1965, the State Department ruled 5,173 U.S. citizens had lost their citizenship because they voted in foreign elections. And the same thing happened to another 425 in the first six months of this year.

The State Department felt authority was clear, for a section of the 1940 Nationality Act says:

"A person who is a national of the United States, whether by birth or naturalization, shall lose his nationality by voting in a political election in a foreign state."

The New York Civil Liberties Union, acting on Afroyim's behalf, has won Supreme Court review of the constitutionality of this law, after two lower courts upheld the State Department.

The Supreme Court in recent years has shown itself increasingly reluctant to strip a man of his citizenship, some of the members contending that such a vital right is too precious to lose for anything less than compelling reasons.

At the moment, the government has the power to take away citizenship in six general areas. In addition to renunciation of citizenship or voting in a foreign election, they are:

Obtaining naturalization in a foreign country, serving in the armed forces of a foreign country, under certain circumstances working for a foreign government, and taking an oath of allegiance to a foreign government.

BLYTHEVILLE AIR FORCE BASE, ARK. Colonel George H. McKee (right), 97th Bomb Wing commander, presents the $9,524.98 United Fund check to Mr. J. M. (Mac) Williams (second from left), chairman of the Blytheville United Fund drive. The check was Blytheville AFB's contribution to the United Fund campaign. Also taking part in the Friday ceremony in Colonel McKee's office was Mr. Charles Mosley (second from right), president of the Blytheville United Fund and Lieutenant Colonel Arthur R. Chadbourne, Blytheville AFB United Fund project chairman.

BLYTHEVILLE AIR FORCE BASE, ARK., -- Blytheville AFB exceeded its established $9,524 United Fund goal this year by contributing 98 cents more than that amount to the campaign.

Colonel George H. McKee, 97th Bomb Wing commander, turned over the check to Mr. J. M. (Mac) Williams, chairman of the Blytheville United Fund Drive in a ceremony Friday morning. Also on hand for the ceremony were Mr. Charles Mosley, president of the Blytheville United Fund and Lieutenant Colonel Arthur R. Chadbourne, Blythevillle AFB United Fund chairman.

This year's contribution by Blytheville AFB personnel was more than last year's efforts. Last year the base contributed $9,388.72.

Colonel McKee praised the work done during this year's drive by Colonel Chadbourne and other key personnel when he said: "The overall project officer (Colonel Chadbourne) and his unit and agency project officers did a fine job in meeting our United Fund goal."

Ten organizations on the base exceeded their established dollar goals, according to Colonel Chadbourne. They were: Headquarters, 42d Air Division; Headquarters Squadron, 97th Bomb Wing; 340th Bomb Squadron; 97th Air Refueling Squadron; 97th Airborne Missile Maintenance Squadron; 97th Field Maintenance Squadron; 97th Services Squadron; Detachment 14, 26th Weather Squadron; 303C Field Training Detachment and the base exchange.

Four other organizations reached their established dollar goals. They were: 97th Armament and Electronics Maintenance Squadron; 65th Munitions Maintenance Squadron; 97th Transportation Squadron and the Auditor General.

"Unit project officers and key workers should take pride in this fine accomplishment," said Colonel Chadbourne.

This is the second consecutive year that some of the money taken in during the drive will be used to support base activities.

The money will also help support the YMCA (Young Men's Christian Association), Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, Library, United Service Organization and the American Social Health Association.

Armed Forces

James Gwaltney

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. -- Airman James A. Gwaltney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Gwaltney of Rt. 2, Sikeston, Mo., has been selected for technical training at Lackland AFB, Tex., as a U. S. Air Force air policeman.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland. His new school is part of the Air Training Command which conducts hundreds of specialized courses to provide technically trained personnel for the nation's aerospace force.

Airman Gwaltney, a graduate of Thomas W. Kelly High School, Benton, Mo., attended Southeast Missouri State College.

DA NANG, VIETNAM (FHTNC) -- Boatswain's Mate Second Class George W. Hoots, USN, son of Mrs. Effie E. Hoots of Route 14, Sikeston, Mo., has reported for duty at the Naval Support Activity in Da Nang, Viet Nam.

The activity was established to meet increased requirements for combat logistic support of operations in Viet Nam. Approximately 3,500 Navy officers and men are being assigned to the activity.

Their tasks will include offloading ships and handling supplies from razor blades to roadgraders, aircraft fuel and lubricants, and provisions of all kinds, through the port of Da Nang and over beaches from the demilitarized zone in the north to Chu Lai in the south.

CHERRY POINT, N. C.(FHTNC) -- Marine Captain Abram J. Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Jackson Hunter of Oakwood Farms, Sikeston, Mo., is serving with Marine Air Base Squadron (MABS) -14 of Marine Aircraft Group (MAG) -- 14. MAG-14 is a unit of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing (MAW) located at Cherry Point, N. C. Marine Corps Air Station.

MABS-- 14's personnel handle the administrative, motor transport, utilities, communications and other vital sections for the aircraft group.

The Second MAW is ready to give air support to the Second Marine Division or any unit of Fleet Marine Force Atlantic, wherever future commitments dictate.

Pfc. George Bartlett, who has been stationed with the armed forces at Blytheville the past year, in the radio department, spent last week-end here with his mother, Mrs. Nettie Bartlett.

Lt. W. M. Sidwell returned to Camp Atterbury in Indiana yesterday after a 10-day leave which he spent with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. I. Sidwell.

Lt. Sidwell, who has been in the service of his country nearly two years, was recently transferred from the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Clinic to the Mobile Optical Unit in the 27th Medical Depot at the same camp.

Ray A. Moll, machinist mate first class with the U.S. Navy, came Tuesday for a visit of two weeks with his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Moll. During four years of service with his country, this is the young man's first visit home in three years. Last July 4, while in Australia, he met and visited with Ben F. Carroll Jr., another Sikeston youth who was there on duty with the armed forces. Following his visit here, Moll will enter a machinist's school in Washington D. C., for further training.

Jack Lancaster received a message from his brother, Tom Lancaster, yesterday stating that he was en route from Hawaii to Sikeston for a brief visit with the former and his wife. Lancaster, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lancaster of St. Louis, will visit them during his furlough in the states.

Howard Wilson, a U.S. Marine who recently visited his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Marshall, and who left here the latter part of October, has arrived safely at his post somewhere near Hawaii.

Capt. Harry C. Young Jr., who had been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Young, left Tuesday for San Antonio, Texas, where he will be stationed the next two months with the Army Air corps. Mrs. Young, who had been residing with her mother, Mrs. S. J. Reynolds, in Cape Girardeau accompanied him.

KEEPING 'SQUARED AWAY' is part of the Marine Corps tradition on land and sea, but it still seemed strange to see this Marine, complete with ironing board, climbing aboard a ship in Wilmington, N.C. The unidentified Marine was bound for a six-month cruise in the Mediterranean.

REAPPORTIONMENT

A Transmittal of Certain Resolutions Approved by the General Assembly of Virginia on December 3, 1964.

In March, 1962, Mr. Justice Frankfurter and Mr. Justice Harlan, writing in dissent, vigorously protested against the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Tennessee reapportionment case, Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186. This decision, holding that Federal District Courts possess jurisdiction to hear cases challenging State apportionment statutes, was reached, in the view of the dissenters, only by casting aside an impressive body of rulings that reflected the "uniform course of our political history regarding the relationship between population and legislation representation." Moreover, the Justices wrote:

Disregard of inherent limits in the effective exercise of the Court's "judicial power" not only presages the futility of judicial intervention in the essentially political conflict of forces by which the relation between population and representation has time out of mind been and now is determined. It may well impair the Court's position as the ultimate organ of "the supreme Law of the Land" in that vast range of legal problems, often strongly entangled in popular feeling, on which this Court must pronounce. The Court's authority-- possessed neither of the purse nor the sword -- ultimately rests on sustained public confidence in its moral sanction. Such feeling must be nourished by the Court's complete detachment, in fact and in appearance, from political entanglements and by abstention from injecting itself into the clash of political forces in political settlements.

But the gates had been opened, and the next two years saw a flood of cases filed in the Federal courts challenging the apportionment scheme of over thirty-five States. The climax was reached on June 15, 1964, when the Supreme Court handed down its opinion in the case of Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533. This case, going beyond the question of jurisdiction raised in Baker, supra, going beyond the question of a county unit system, raised in Gray v. Sanders, 372 U.S. 368 (1963) going beyond the attacks on the constitutionality of congressional districting plans enacted by State legislatures made in Wesberry v. Sanders, 376 U.S. 1 (1964), held that the "equal protection clause" of the Fourteenth Amendment requires that "the seats in both houses of a bicameral State legislature must be apportioned on a population basis."

The Right of the Right To Work

PROTECT THE RIGHT OF EVERY CITIZEN...
ERNEST M. SIMS
Elkhart, Ind.

Mr. Sims has been closely identified with the Methodist Church for nearly all of his life. The chairman of the board of the Metal Forming Corp. of Elkhart, Ind., he has a family background of loyalty and service to his religious denomination, and is the grandson of a Methodist minister. As part of his many church-connected activities, he was a director of the Wesley Foundation at Purdue University, and is a trustee of DePauw University. He is a mechanical engineer by profession.

THE MAIN PLANK in the platform of organized labor is and always has been the universal establishment of the closed shop. Some modifications in its features have been used which are claimed to provide a measure of protection for the employee's freedom of choice. Actually there is no essential difference in the ultimate effect of these variations.

The closed shop requires all workers to be members of the union when employed and remain members "in good standing" during employment. A union shop differs only in that the employee is given a preliminary period, usually thirty days, in which he is not required to become a member. At the end of that time, however, he must join or lose his job.

Under the maintenance of membership type of agreement, employees who have once joined must remain members, either during employment or the life of an existing contract. The last plan is used very little because it does not meet the union demand for tight control over all the workers in a plant.

The unions are driving uncompromisingly toward the closed shop which is their ultimate objective. They accept the union shop now only because the Taft-Hartley law prohibits the more rigid form, and repeal of Section 14(b) of Taft-Hartley is high on their agenda.

Compelling a man to join a union as a condition of employment is the most cruel invasion of human rights ever tolerated in American industry. It deprives him of the right to determine and direct his own economic pursuits. It tells him where he can work, at what job, and how much he can be paid. It says to him he must accept the judgment of others as to what is good for him and he must pay tribute to a private organization in order to have a job at all.

Freedom can be symbolized by a tripod, whose legs are freedom of speech, freedom of religion, and the right to work. If one leg is broken or removed, the whole structure falls. Forcing workers into union membership breaks down one leg of freedom's tripod and ultimately all their other liberties will be destroyed with it. For freedom cannot be divided.

The only hope of restoring to labor its constitutional freedom and ridding the nation of this menace to the liberties of all the people lies in state laws that ban the union shop. The unions are determined that they shall be repealed in the states that have passed them and to prevent the enactment of similar laws in others.

In many of the remaining 31 the lawmakers will be asked to face the issue. Their decisions in large measure will determine the fate of freedom in America for years to come. Americans who value our precious heritage of liberty and unlimited opportunity will let their representative know they expect them to protect the right of every citizen to choose his own economic relationships.

"We stand for the Constitution of the United States, and for all rights secured thereby to both sovereign states of the Union and to the individual citizens.

"We believe it is fundamental that the right to voluntary unionism should once again be reestablished in this nation and that state right to work laws should be maintained inviolate.

"At the very basis of all of our doctrine stands the right to the free agency of man. We are in favor of maintaining this free agency to the greatest extent possible. We look adversely upon any infringement thereof not essential to the proper exercise of police power of the state."

-David O. McKay, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah.

The climax was reached on June 15, 1964, when the Supreme Court handed down its opinion in the case of Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533. This case, going beyond the question of jurisdiction raised in Baker, supra, going beyond the question of a county unit system, raised in Gray v. Sanders, 372 U.S. 368 (1963) going beyond the attacks on the constitutionality of congressional districting plans enacted by State legislatures made in Wesberry v. Sanders, 376 U.S. 1 (1964), held that the "equal protection clause" of the Fourteenth Amendment requires that "the seats in both houses of a bicameral State legislature must be apportioned on a population basis."

The Right of the Right To Work

PROTECT THE RIGHT OF EVERY CITIZEN. . .
ERNEST M. SIMS
Elkhart, Ind.

Mr. Sims has been closely identified with the Methodist Church for nearly all of his life. The chairman of the board of the Metal Forming Corp. of Elkhart, Ind., he has a family background of loyalty and service to his religious denomination, and is the grandson of a Methodist minister. As part of his many church-connected activities, he was a director of the Wesley Foundation at Purdue University, and is a trustee of DePauw University. He is a mechanical engineer by profession.

THE MAIN PLANK in the platform of organized labor is and always has been the universal establishment of the closed shop. Some modifications in its features have been used which are claimed to provide a measure of protection for the employee's freedom of choice. Actually there is no essential difference in the ultimate effect of these variations.

The closed shop requires all workers to be members of the union when employed and remain members "in good standing" during employment. A union shop differs only in that the employee is given a preliminary period, usually thirty days, in which he is not required to become a member. At the end of that time, however, he must join or lose his job.

Under the maintenance of membership type of agreement, employees who have once joined must remain members, either during employment or the life of an existing contract. The last plan is used very little because it does not meet the union demand for tight control over all the workers in a plant.

The unions are driving uncompromisingly toward the closed shop which is their ultimate objective. They accept the union shop now only because the Taft-Hartley law prohibits the more rigid form, and repeal of Section 14(b) of Taft-Hartley is high on their agenda.

Compelling a man to join a union as a condition of employment is the most cruel invasion of human rights ever tolerated in American industry. It deprives him of the right to determine and direct his own economic pursuits. It tells him where he can work, at what job, and how much he can be paid. It says to him he must accept the judgment of others as to what is good for him and he must pay tribute to a private organization in order to have a job at all.

Freedom can be symbolized by a tripod, whose legs are freedom of speech, freedom of religion, and the right to work. If one leg is broken or removed, the whole structure falls. Forcing workers into union membership breaks down one leg of freedom's tripod and ultimately all their other liberties will be destroyed with it. For freedom cannot be divided.

The only hope of restoring to labor its constitutional freedom and ridding the nation of this menace to the liberties of all the people lies in state laws that ban the union shop. The unions are determined that they shall be repealed in the states that have passed them and to prevent the enactment of similar laws in others.

In many of the remaining 31 the lawmakers will be asked to face the issue. Their decisions in large measure will determine the fate of freedom in America for years to come. Americans who value our precious heritage of liberty and unlimited opportunity will let their representative know they expect them to protect the right of every citizen to choose his own economic relationships.

"We stand for the Constitution of the United States, and for all rights secured thereby to both sovereign states of the Union and to the individual citizens.

"We believe it is fundamental that the right to voluntary unionism should once again be reestablished in this nation and that state right to work laws should be maintained inviolate.

"At the very basis of all of our doctrine stands the right to the free agency of man. We are in favor of maintaining this free agency to the greatest extent possible. We look adversely upon any infringement thereof not essential to the proper exercise of police power of the state."

-David O. McKay, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Morehouse Men Enter Navy

ESSEX - Two cousins, Ronald L. McAnulty and Darrell McAnulty, entered the navy Oct. 24. Ronald McAnulty is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy McAnulty and Darrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McAnulty, all of route two, Essex.

The Assembly of God church of Morehouse, of which the Roy McAnulty family are members, gave a dinner in honor of Ronald McAnulty, Oct. 23. A gift was presented by friends of the church. Seated at the guest table were Ronald McAnulty and Miss Linda Duncan, and Darrell McAnulty and Miss Joan Odum.

Darrell McAnulty was given a farewell party by the Birds Corner Assembly of God church of which his parents are members.

Both young men are receiving training at the Navy training center at San Diego, Calif. Ronald's brother, James (Allen) McAnulty, is stationed with the Navy at San Diego.

ABOUT OUR SCHOOLS

By Lynn Twitty

There was concern when the Supreme Court ruled that prayer could not be made compulsory in the schools. But to put it as simply as possible, their ruling did not forbid prayer in school; it merely made it illegal to impose a specific prayer on students. While no one may agree with us, we feel that this is as it should be; that no one has the right to tell anyone else that they must use a specific prayer; that they must pray; that they cannot pray; or in fact anything about it which is compulsory. We feel that this is a personal matter and that this same consideration should be extended to school children.

Actually, it seems to us that religion is strengthened by the Supreme Court decision, rather than weakened it. If religion, or any abstract belief, has to rely on legislation for its impact, then it has little to offer the human race. Furthermore, we still have voluntary religious observances including Bible reading -- as literature, voluntary prayer, we still maintain a baccalaureate ceremony, in fact the ruling has not affected us at all.

The National Council of Churches favors this separation of church and state as do most individual ministers and other religious leaders. About the only concern that we can find is that of the vote seeking politician who wishes to appeal to those who are ignorant, of what the Supreme Court actually said.

All of Missouri's border states: Iowa, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Illinois spend a larger percentage of their per capita income on schools than does Missouri. Iowa and Kansas lead with 4.1 per cent of income allocated for education, while Missouri trails with 3.1. The national average is 3.8. This is from a report made by the Academy for Educational Development, Inc., for the Missouri Governor's Conference on Education, recently submitted to Governor Hearnes.

Also the report states there is evidence of inefficiency in Missouri's educational system as a result of the extensive number of small inefficient school districts resulting in a waste of the limited resources which Missourians allocate to their schools.

This failure to spend for education is reflected by the statistic that Missouri adults 25 years of age or older have completed, on the average, only 9.6 years of schooling or a full year less than the median for the nation. Southeast Missouri is generally even farther behind. The median years of school completed in Pemiscot county is 7.1; in Mississippi 7.2; New Madrid 7.4; Stoddard 8.2; Dunklin 8.3; and Scott 8.4. Naturally this low investment in education, resulting in, on the average, fewer years of schooling, inevitably results in less income per family. In the counties listed, the median family income ranges from $2,173 in the lowest county to $3,957, in the highest, while for Missouri as a whole, the median family income is $5,127.

While we cannot say that low educational attainment necessarily causes low income, the facts indicate beyond doubt that there is a relationship. This fact is so definite that we cannot see how much longer our legislators can ignore it if they are generally interested in the individual and collective welfare of the people of this state. Especially so when the wealth and resources of the people of Missouri is such that we can afford a much better - than - average educational program.

At the same time the responsibility of the citizens and the elected representatives to organize larger and more effective school districts in order that the taxpayer's dollar may buy the most in education.

In a study made of the underdeveloped Ozark area, the first priority recommendation was for better education in order to improve the social and economic aspects of that region.

Problems facing the Sikeston schools, Board of Education, and community in continuing the improvement of our schools must include: higher faculty and non - certificated employees salaries, new buildings to replace obsolescent or nonfunctional structures, and to provide services not now being met. This could include enlargement of the Senior High School, added elementary rooms, or buildings, a field house, an auditorium, and enlargement of the vocational school complex; continued improvement of the curriculum and further integration to permit equality of educational opportunity, etc.

All of these things are likely possible within the resources of the community. An intensive study, in cooperation with professional consultant, the Citizens Advisory Council, the PTA's, other individuals and groups, is underway with hope for an outcome that our schools will meet the needs of all students.

In the long run, our community, as is true of our state, will only be as good as the schools which we provide for our citizens.

The United States Labor Department recently made a survey indicating that it cost $32,500,000 to train one group of 63,000 workers under the Manpower and Development Training Act. This is expensive training. But a review of the tax returns of these 63,000 workers shows that they are paying an annual income tax of $17,500,000. We suspect that any businessman would be pleased to get a 100 per cent return on his investment in less than two years. Hereafter, the government is receiving an income from tax payers which is pure profit. This is good business -- in anybody's language.

The Board of Education here is operating one of the biggest Manpower and Development Training Act programs in the state, and under this same title is conducting one of the states three Multi - Occupational programs. The Multi program is primarily for unemployed heads of families, or unemployed youth, from very low income families.

NUN, PRIEST, PHYSICIAN AGREE
Responsible Parenthood Is Catholic Concern

BY LOUISE CHASE
WOMEN'S MEDICAL NEWS SERVICE

Addressing a conference here just prior to Pope Paul's announcement of his continued study of the morality of modern birth control methods, an American nun, a Mexican priest, and a Roman Catholic physician from Chile agreed that responsible control of conception is needed to produce a new and truly human world order.

Sister Mary A. Schaldenbrand, professor of philosophy at Nazareth College in Michigan, said that "the objectives of family planning . . .insofar as they are realized, contribute impressively to the building up of a world of not merely masses, but persons." The responsible control of conception, she added, is also a significant factor in freeing women from a "narrowly conceived role of preserving the species" which denies them "the full scope and free exercise of their personal powers." Sister Mary emphasized that women's "unhampered participation in the broadest range of human activities is of utmost importance . . .to the fulfillment of our hopes for building up on a global scale a society of persons."

Another critically important contribution of family planning, she observed, is that it diminishes sexual fears and anxieties, making more possible true sexual communion, thus "liberating time and energy for the development of personal capacities and their exercise within the larger human community."

PRIEST SPEAKS OUT

More and more Mexican women are using birth control methods banned by the church, despite grave moral conflict, not because they do not love children, but because they love children intensely and want them to have the opportunity to live meaningful lives. This is the view of Padre Alfonso Orozco, professor of moral theology at the Seminario del Espiritu Santo, in Mexico City, who, for several years has assisted at the only family planning clinic in his country.

After exploring with several hundred women their reasons for coming to the clinic, he concluded that they "prize the role of motherhood. They want to have children but are aware that motherhood is a value and not a simple physical phenomenon of anatomy that they have to put up with just because they are women."

Virtually all the women told the Padre they don't want additional children because they already have too many and don't have the means to bring them up properly. In addition they want to preserve their marriages. These are threatened, they feel when, out of anxiety about pregnancy, they deny themselves and their husbands a normal sex life. Often in this situation the husbands abandon their families.

Many women agreed with what one of their number told Father Orozco, "God forgive me for the abortions I've had, but I couldn't do anything else. I believe that the pill is better than abortion and that is why I came."

SHOCKING STATISTICS

The audience at the conference sponsored by Planned Parenthood/World Population was given the facts which have led Chile to adopt a national birth control program:

. More than 36 percent of pregnancies were terminated by illegal abortions.

. Illegal abortions caused half the country's maternal deaths.

. One of three maternity ward beds was occupied by a woman who had an illegal abortion. The cost of this hospital care was over a million dollars a year.

According to Dr. Benjamin Viel, professor of preventive medicine at the University of Chile, that nation's explosive population growth in the last 45 years "provoked social and political instability." Food production, he noted, "has not kept pace with the population increase," and Chileans are eating just a little more than half the amount of meat they ate 30 years ago, and have 20 percent less milk to drink than they had in 1951.

Escalation to Inflation

Dr. Kershner

THE widespread demand for an increase in the minimum wage to $1.40 an hour now, rising to $1.75 by 1968, is not based on an informed desire to help our lower income citizens. It is in fact a cruel deception. No one can force an employer to pay a worker more than the economic value of his output. The effort to do so results either in increasing the number of unemployed, or inflation, or both.

If the minimum wage be raised, the wages of workers requiring greater skill will also have to be raised. A skilled worker will not be satisfied without an adequate differential between his wages and those of an unskilled worker. Raising the minimum will escalate the whole wage structure of America. That of course will be reflected in higher prices. It is another move upward in the wage-price spiral that is continually raising the cost of living. The most probable result of raising the minimum wage to $1.75 per hour will be that this amount of money will buy no more than the current minimum wage level of $1.25 per hour. It is cruelly selfish for labor leaders and politicians to deceive their constituents in an effort to make it appear that they are doing something for them.

Moreover, the establishment of a minimum wage is another step on the road to a government managed economy. It will lead eventually to the fixing of all wages and consequently of prices. Under that system, the government must go on and decide what is to be produced and who is to do what. In other words, we are headed toward an authoritarian government and a centrally planned economy such as we see operating so poorly in Communist lands.

Mrs. Gladys S. Kyles, age 38 and mother of eleven children, has been named by Sergeant Shriver to the twenty-eight-member National Advisory Council of President Johnson's War on Poverty.

Mrs. Kyles has not seen her husband for nine years, and she draws four hundred dollars a month in federal money as aid for dependent children. Three of these children were born long after the disappearance of her estranged husband.

It matters not that Mrs. Kyles is a Negress. The point is that no one with that record who is receiving four hundred dollars of relief money every month should be an adviser to the President concerning the expenditure of hundreds of millions of the taxpayer's money.

Don't Give Up Too Soon

By Hannah Moor

A FEW DAYS ago I saw an elderly woman waiting to cross the street. When the light was green, the crowd surged forward and she stood alone, afraid that she would be knocked down in the rush. Knowing that some of our senior citizens don't like to feel too dependent on others, I laid my hand gently on her arm and asked, "Would it be all right if I crossed with you?"

The faded blue eyes expressed her thanks, and we very slowly made our way across the street. "It'll be a wonder if a car doesn't knock me down some time," she said. "But I don't want to give up too soon."

As I finished my shopping and wearily trudged the sidewalk toward home, those words kept flashing into my mind.

I wondered how many inventions the world had been robbed of because some brilliant man had given up too soon. I wondered how many churches had missed revival because they had given up too soon. I wondered how often our prayers had missed being answered because we just didn't hang on a bit longer.

I thought of Job and of how in the midst of fierce trial he was able to say, "For I know that my redeemer liveth.. yet in my flesh I shall see God" (Job 19;25, 26). He held on. and deliverance came.

I thought of Joshua's being laughed at as his armies marched around Jericho once a day for six days. How easy it would have been for him to feel that he was acting foolish. But he kept them marching as God commanded, and there was victory.

I thought of the Lord Jesus in the garden of Gethsemane. I wondered what our world would be like now if He had stopped there, if He had given up.

Today in our work, in our service for God, in our prayer life, though discouragement battles us, let us trust God. The desired results will come. Don't give up too soon!

The life expectancy of the porpoise has been estimated at 30 years. The porpoise, a mammal which breathes air directly and suckles its young, differs from the dolphin only in that it is smaller and does not have the characteristic bottle nose of the dolphin.

Storm's Distance

It is possible to tell how far away an electrical storm is by watching for the jagged streak of lightning, then counting off the seconds until the thunder noise reaches you. Thunder travels one mile in five seconds. If it takes 15 seconds for the noise to reach you after the flash. you know the storm is three miles away.

Escalation to Inflation

THE widespread demand for an increase in the minimum wage to $1.40 an hour now, rising to $1.75 by 1968, is not based on an informed desire to help our lower income citizens. It is in fact a cruel deception. No one can force an employer to pay a worker more than the economic value of his output. The effort to do so results either in increasing the number of unemployed, or inflation, or both.

Dr. Kershner

If the minimum wage be raised, the wages of workers requiring greater skill will also have to be raised. A skilled worker will not be satisfied without an adequate differential between his wages and those of an unskilled worker. Raising the minimum will escalate the whole wage structure of America. That of course will be reflected in higher prices. It is another move upward in the wage-price spiral that is continually raising the cost of living. The most probable result of raising the minimum wage to $1.75 per hour will be that this amount of money will buy no more than the current minimum wage level of $1.25 per hour. It is cruelly selfish for labor leaders and politicians to deceive their constituents in an effort to make it appear that they are doing something for them.

Moreover, the establishment of a minimum wage is another step on the road to a government managed economy. It will lead eventually to the fixing of all wages and consequently of prices. Under that system, the government must go on and decide what is to be produced and who is to do what. In other words, we are headed toward an authoritarian government and a centrally planned economy such as we see operating so poorly in Communist lands.

Mrs. Gladys S. Kyles, age 38 and mother of eleven children, has been named by Sergeant Shriver to the twenty-eight-member National Advisory Council of President Johnson's War on Poverty.

Mrs. Kyles has not seen her husband for nine years, and she draws four hundred dollars a month in federal money as aid for dependent children. Three of these children were born long after the disappearance of her estranged husband.

It matters not that Mrs. Kyles is a Negress. The point is that no one with that record who is receiving four hundred dollars of relief money every month should be an adviser to the President concerning the expenditure of hundreds of millions of the taxpayer's money.

Don't Give Up Too Soon

By Hannah Moor

A FEW DAYS ago I saw an elderly woman waiting to cross the street. When the light was green, the crowd surged forward and she stood alone, afraid that she would be knocked down in the rush. Knowing that some of our senior citizens don't like to feel too dependent on others, I laid my hand gently on her arm and asked, "Would it be all right if I crossed with you?"

The faded blue eyes expressed her thanks, and we very slowly made our way across the street.

"It'll be a wonder if a car doesn't knock me down some time," she said. "But I don't want to give up too soon."

As I finished my shopping and wearily trudged the sidewalk toward home, those words kept flashing into my mind.

I wondered how many inventions the world had been robbed of because some brilliant man had given up too soon. I wondered how many churches had missed revival because they had given up too soon. I wondered how often our prayers had missed being answered because we just didn't hang on a bit longer.

I thought of Job and of how in the midst of fierce trial he was able to say, "For I know that my redeemer liveth.. yet in my flesh I shall see God" (Job 19:25, 26). He held on. and deliverance came.

I thought of Joshua's being laughed at as his armies marched around Jericho once a day for six days. How easy it would have been for him to feel that he was acting foolish. But he kept them marching as God commanded, and there was victory.

I thought of the Lord Jesus in the garden of Gethsemane. I wondered what our world would be like now if He had stopped there, if He had given up.

Today in our work, in our service for God, in our prayer life, though discouragement battles us, let us trust God. The desired results will come. Don't give up too soon!

The life expectancy of the porpoise has been estimated at 30 years. The porpoise, a mammal which breathes air directly and suckles its young, differs from the dolphin only in that it is smaller and does not have the characteristic bottle nose of the dolphin.

Storm's Distance

It is possible to tell how far away an electrical storm is by watching for the jagged streak of lightning, then counting off the seconds until the thunder noise reaches you. Thunder travels one mile in five seconds. If it takes 15 seconds for the noise to reach you after the flash, you know the storm is three miles away.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
Nov. 10, 1916

P. A. Smith of Beech Grove Ky., was in Sikeston the latter part of the week looking for a location. He expects to make this his home and will open an acetylene welding shop for repairing all sorts of machinery.

John E. Marshall has had his lot east of the city hall plowed and sown to blue grass. Col. Grandstaff will keep it in order and when spring arrives a canna border will be put out that will give us another pretty park.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am 21 years old, a college senior. Six years ago I was about ten pounds overweight and slightly dumpy looking. My family and friends began to "joke" about my fat but it was no joke to me. The more they "joked" the unhappier I became - and the more I ate. I was determined to show them they couldn't run my life and that I would do precisely as I pleased.

Last year I had to face the fact that I was 82 pounds overweight. I tried doctors, pills, diets and shots, but nothing worked. I cheated, lied, sneaked food and continued to put on a pound or two every week.

When I enrolled in a college 2,000 miles from home I was 90 pounds overweight. But in my new circles of friends nobody mentioned my size. They talked about my ideas, my willingness to cooperate on worthwhile projects, my leadership ability and my terrific sense of humor.

My weight is down fifty pounds. I have another forty to lose and you can bet your bottom dollar I'll lose it. Why? Because now I like myself. And my friends turned the miracle. --ROCHESTER, N.Y.

Dear N.Y.: What a wonderful letter! And what a glorious tribute to your wise friends. You have told of a magnificent victory and I am delighted to be able to share it with millions.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what to do about a husband who breaks things in anger. Never HIS things, mind you. Only my things. Immediately after he destroyed my best hand mirror (a gift from my mother) he ripped up a book I was reading and screamed "There - I hope you are satisfied. You've been asking for this all day."

I am sick and tired of being blamed for this lunatic's destructiveness. He has been behaving this way ever since we were married (10 years ago). Our children don't understand their father's violent outbursts and they become frightened when he goes on these wild rampages.

What is wrong with him and what can I do about it? --HUTCHINSON HEARTACHE

Dear Hutch: A California psychiatrist wrote a book called "Games People Play." Your husband is playing a game called "See What You Made Me Do?"

"See What You Made Me Do" is played by an individual who is mad at himself. He yearns for an excuse to be mad at someone else. So he behaves in an outrageous manner and blames the first person who walks through the door.

The only known cure for such childishness is to grow up.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 19-year-old receptionist in a physician's office. I love my work and don't want to give it up. Here is the problem:

The nurse in charge here is an old maid who is still wearing her dresses four inches below her knee. I happen to be a person who likes high style. Everyone knows short skirts are in. I shortened my uniforms and they are now three inches above the knee. The old crow told me today my uniforms are not acceptable in the office and that I must let the hems down to where they were.

Should I have it out with her in front of the boss?--WITH IT

Dear With: A skirt that hits three inches above the knee is not appropriate dress for a receptionist in a physician's office. Conform or leave.

Mail Box

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I, along with quite a few other people, found the picture concerning Odis Ray Stone's death (Nov. 5, 1966) totally obnoxious!

Truly, this is a picture of reality. It did possibly look like that, but do you not think it a little low to play upon peoples' emotions in such a harsh manner? If nothing else, how do you think Mr. Stone's family felt at the picture's being printed? The scene would be very difficult to forget. And, of course, this is certainly not a clipping for his wife's scrapbook!

Sometimes, I realize, the photographer wants a shot that will not only get attention but will be a good study in human relations, too. Death is hardly something to be taken so coldly --especially a torturous death.

Other than this, I have found your photography very good, but don't you think that all concerned are owed an apology for such a poor example of compassion as well as news coverage?

Accidental death has enough horror in itself . . . . .

In Sincerity,

The Prayer
For Today
From the Upper Room

Although the doors were locked, Jesus came and stood among them, saying, "Peace be with you!" (John 20:26, NEB)

PRAYER: Loving father, help us to reflect the peace of Jesus. May he live in us and say to us, and He did to His disciples when He showed them His hands and side, "Peace be with you." In His name. Amen.

OPERATION SHARP EYE: PRUNES

Keep a sharp eye on prunes during November.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service reports that the 1966 California dried prune production was 170,000 tons, or nearly 30,000 tons larger than the recent five year average.

Combine this with a 38,000 ton carryover at the beginning of the present marketing season and the result is an abundant supply of attractively priced prunes.

The generous supplies come none too soon. Cold weather, usually means baking weather, and prunes are always a welcome ingredient for cakes, cookies, cobblers, puddings and homemade candies. For a delectable treat, try these PRUNE CHEWS:

Cream together 1/2 cup butter, 1 cup flour and 1/2 cup brown sugar until crumbly. Pat out into a greased 9x9x2 inch pan, placing mixture 1 inch high around edges. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Combine another 1/2 c. brown sugar, 1 tblsp. cornstarch, 1/4 tsp. salt, 1/4 c. prune juice, 11/2 c. plumped, chopped prunes, 2 tblsp. lemon juice and 2 tsp. lemon rind. Cook until thickened. Add 1 cup chopped walnuts. Beat 2 eggs and stir into eggs 4 oz. can flaked coconut and 1 tsp. vanilla extract. Spoon evenly over prune mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. Cook and cut into squares. Yield will be 16 squares.

Banking Leader Feels Confident Economy Will Continue to Grow

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Whenever he visits the East Coast, where bankers are big and their ideas are powerul, Rudolph Peterson is an honored guest. For Peterson represents the biggest bank of them all.

Peterson is president of the Bank of America, which has main offices in San Francisco and Los Angeles, 891 other offices throughout California, 34 overseas branches, and investments in almost every nation of the world.

When the bank's officers speak there are consequences, not merely because of its size, but because of its tradition. Oversimplified, Bank of America began with a concept and proved it.

Back in 1904 a first-generation American, A. P. Giannini, formed the Bank of Italy and set about lending money to some of the poorest workers who, he felt, were among the safest risks.

As Peterson related in an interview, the bank took chances with the worker that had seldom been taken before. When dealing with blue-collar people, serious consideration and great delay were banking traditions.

The largest banks on the East Coast generally have had a different tradition. Even some most readily identified with consumer rather than business lending began with big money and worked down to the small change.

Having proved a point, what does the Bank of America look for in the immediate economic future? Peterson was asked this as he relaxed at a desert resort where he met with Japanese businessmen to discuss transpacific trade?

"There is no reason not to expect, in absolute terms, a consistent economic growth," he replied. "The economy is moving up steadily and it should continue."

Peterson concedes there will be soft spots. "A bit in textiles, in housing of course, and to some extent in the automotive industry," he said. But, he continued, the economy will remain strong.

The worst blight at the moment is indecision and uncertainty, he said. We are uncertain about the course of the war; we have many labor contracts coming up for renewal; we still have not decided for or against a tax increase.

As Peterson views it, the erratic course of prices in this year's stock market reflect this uncertainty. Uncertain stockholders reflect the businessman's indecision about committing funds while uncertain about the economy. But it may not be all that bleak.

"When you sit down with the businessman, however, you get the feeling next year will be a good year," he said. "There will be some restraint about spending, but spending for improvement can be remedial, too, in lowering costs."

The end of the war in Viet Nam would be bullish, he feels. "We might have some pockets of temporary recession and unemployment, but it will be minimal."

The reason, as Peterson states it, is that the nation has as much work on the back burner.

In summary: Some soft spots, some dangers, more restraint than this year—but essentially a strong, growing economy in 1967.

James Bond Ushers In New Series Era

By Bob Thomas
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP - What hath James Bond wrought? The return of the series movie, for one thing.

Two and three decades ago, every studio had its series - films with the same characters that could be counted on to bolster the annual product. The most successful was MGM's Hardy family.

The series began in 1937 with "You're Only Young Once," which proved so popular that a sequel was ordered. The Hardy films made millions and helped develop such new stars as Lana Turner, Judy Garland, Donna Reed and Esther Williams. The series ended after the war when twice-married Mickey Rooney as Andy Hardy seemed too mature to be getting fatherly advice from the old judge, Lewis Stone.

Series films disappeared from the movie scene in the wake of television. The studios reasoned that audiences saw enough continuing characters on the home screen. But the ittrepid 007 changed all that.

The Bond pictures have proved fantastically successful. According to Variety, domestic rental fees to United Artists have risen successively: "Dr. No," $4,655,000; "From Russia With Love," $8,400,000; "Goldfinger," $19,700,000. The returns from "Thunderball" are estimated at $25 million from this country; and equal amount is expected from overseas.

Naturally other studios sought to cash in on the Bondomania. Fox unleashed James Coburn as "Our Man Flint," and the results were amazing; an estimated $14 to 15 million worldwide gross. "In Like Flint" has now been filmed, and another Flint flick is in the works.

Columbia cast Dean Martin as Matt Helm in "The Silencers" and Martin happily reports a $9 million gross. He recently completed another Helm epic, "Murderer's Row," and a half-dozen more are planned.

Universal has brought back Bulldog Drummond with some modern touches in "Deadlier than the Male." The movie stars Richard Johnson and may spark a series.

Most of the new series produce only a film a year. It was different in the old days. The most prolific studio of all was Monogram, which poured forth endless numbers of Bowery Boys, Joe Palooka, Maggie and Jiggs and other series.

Fox countered MGM's hit series with the Jones family, but the Joneses couldn't keep up with the Hardys. Also from the Fox stable: Charlie Chan, Cisco Kid, Mr. Belvedere. MGM had its Tarzans and pre-television Lassie, Thin Man and Dr. Kildare. RKO had its Mexican Spitfire, Scattergood Baines and the Saint.

Columbia had a whole stable of detectives, including the Crime Doctor, Lone Wolf and Boston Blackie, as well as the highly successful Blondie series. Universal struck it rich with Ma and Pa Kettle, Francis the Talking Mule, the Frankenstein-Dracula-Mummy horror films, Sherlock Holmes, etc. Paramount had the Hope-Crosby-Lamour roads and Hopalong Cassidy, and Warners strung along with Torchy Blane and Philo Vance.

I, along with quite a few other people, found the picture concerning Odis Ray Stone's death (Nov. 5, 1966) totally obnoxious!

Truly, this is a picture of reality. It did possibly look like that, but do you not think it a little low to play upon peoples' emotions in such a harsh manner? If nothing else, how do you think Mr. Stone's family felt at the picture's being printed? The scene would be very difficult to forget. And, of course, this is certainly not a clipping for his wife's scrapbook!

Sometimes, I realize, the photographer wants a shot that will not only get attention but will be a good study in human relations, too. Death is hardly something to be taken so coldly --especially a torturous death.

Other than this, I have found your photography very good, but don't you think that all concerned are owed an apology for such a poor example of compassion as well as news coverage?

Accidental death has enough horror in itself . . . . .

The Prayer
For Today
From the Upper Room

Although the doors were locked, Jesus came and stood among them, saying, "Peace be with you!" (John 20:26, NEB)

PRAYER: Loving father, help us to reflect the peace of Jesus. May he live in us and say to us, and He did to His disciples when He showed them His hands and side, "Peace be with you." In His name. Amen.

OPERATION SHARP EYE: PRUNES

Keep a sharp eye on prunes during November.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service reports that the 1966 California dried prune production was 170,000 tons, or nearly 30,000 tons larger than the recent five year average.

Combine this with a 38,000 ton carryover at the beginning of the present marketing season and the result is an abundant supply of attractively priced prunes.

The generous supplies come none too soon. Cold weather, usually means baking weather, and prunes are always a welcome ingredient for cakes, cookies, cobblers, puddings and homemade candies. For a delectable treat, try these PRUNE CHEWS:

Cream together 1/2 cup butter, 1 cup flour and 1/2 cup brown sugar until crumbly. Pat out into a greased 9x9x2 inch pan, placing mixture 1 inch high around edges. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Combine another 1/2 c. brown sugar, 1 tblsp. cornstarch, 1/4 tsp. salt, 1/4 c. prune juice, 11/2 c. plumped, chopped prunes, 2 tblsp. lemon juice and 2 tsp. lemon rind. Cook until thickened. Add 1 cup chopped walnuts. Beat 2 eggs and stir into eggs 4 oz. can flaked coconut and 1 tsp. vanilla extract. Spoon evenly over prune mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. Cook and cut into squares. Yield will be 16 squares.

Banking Leader Feels Confident Economy Will Continue to Grow

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Whenever he visits the East Coast, where bankers are big and their ideas are powerul, Rudolph Peterson is an honored guest. For Peterson represents the biggest bank of them all.

Peterson is president of the Bank of America, which has main offices in San Francisco and Los Angeles, 891 other offices throughout California, 34 overseas branches, and investments in almost every nation of the world.

When the bank's officers speak there are consequences, not merely because of its size, but because of its tradition. Oversimplified, Bank of America began with a concept and proved it.

Back in 1904 a first-generation American, A. P. Giannini, formed the Bank of Italy and set about lending money to some of the poorest workers who, he felt, were among the safest risks.

As Peterson related in an interview, the bank took chances with the worker that had seldom been taken before. When dealing with blue-collar people, serious consideration and great delay were banking traditions.

The largest banks on the East Coast generally have had a different tradition. Even some most readily identified with consumer rather than business lending began with big money and worked down to the small change.

Having proved a point, what does the Bank of America look for in the immediate economic future? Peterson was asked this as he relaxed at a desert resort where he met with Japanese businessmen to discuss transpacific trade?

"There is no reason not to expect, in absolute terms, a consistent economic growth," he replied. "The economy is moving up steadily and it should continue."

Peterson concedes there will be soft spots. "A bit in textiles, in housing of course, and to some extent in the automotive industry," he said. But, he continued, the economy will remain strong.

The worst blight at the moment is indecision and uncertainty, he said. We are uncertain about the course of the war; we have many labor contracts coming up for renewal; we still have not decided for or against a tax increase.

As Peterson views it, the erratic course of prices in this year's stock market reflect this uncertainty. Uncertain stockholders reflect the businessman's indecision about committing funds while uncertain about the economy. But it may not be all that bleak.

"When you sit down with the businessman, however, you get the feeling next year will be a good year," he said. "There will be some restraint about spending, but spending for improvement can be remedial, too, in lowering costs."

The end of the war in Viet Nam would be bullish, he feels. "We might have some pockets of temporary recession and unemployment, but it will be minimal."

The reason, as Peterson states it, is that the nation has as much work on the back burner.

In summary: Some soft spots, some dangers, more restraint than this year—but essentially a strong, growing economy in 1967.

James Bond Ushers In New Series Era

By Bob Thomas
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP - What hath James Bond wrought? The return of the series movie, for one thing.

Two and three decades ago, every studio had its series - films with the same characters that could be counted on to bolster the annual product. The most successful was MGM's Hardy family.

The series began in 1937 with "You're Only Young Once," which proved so popular that a sequel was ordered. The Hardy films made millions and helped develop such new stars as Lana Turner, Judy Garland, Donna Reed and Esther Williams. The series ended after the war when twice-married Mickey Rooney as Andy Hardy seemed too mature to be getting fatherly advice from the old judge, Lewis Stone.

Series films disappeared from the movie scene in the wake of television. The studios reasoned that audiences saw enough continuing characters on the home screen. But the ittrepid 007 changed all that.

The Bond pictures have proved fantastically successful. According to Variety, domestic rental fees to United Artists have risen successively: "Dr. No," $4,655,000; "From Russia With Love," $8,400,000; "Goldfinger," $19,700,000. The returns from "Thunderball" are estimated at $25 million from this country; and equal amount is expected from overseas.

Naturally other studios sought to cash in on the Bondomania. Fox unleashed James Coburn as "Our Man Flint," and the results were amazing; an estimated $14 to 15 million worldwide gross. "In Like Flint" has now been filmed, and another Flint flick is in the works.

Columbia cast Dean Martin as Matt Helm in "The Silencers" and Martin happily reports a $9 million gross. He recently completed another Helm epic, "Murderer's Row," and a half-dozen more are planned.

Universal has brought back Bulldog Drummond with some modern touches in "Deadlier than the Male." The movie stars Richard Johnson and may spark a series.

Most of the new series produce only a film a year. It was different in the old days. The most prolific studio of all was Monogram, which poured forth endless numbers of Bowery Boys, Joe Palooka, Maggie and Jiggs and other series.

Fox countered MGM's hit series with the Jones family, but the Joneses couldn't keep up with the Hardys. Also from the Fox stable: Charlie Chan, Cisco Kid, Mr. Belvedere. MGM had its Tarzans and pre-television Lassie, Thin Man and Dr. Kildare. RKO had its Mexican Spitfire, Scattergood Baines and the Saint.

Columbia had a whole stable of detectives, including the Crime Doctor, Lone Wolf and Boston Blackie, as well as the highly successful Blondie series. Universal struck it rich with Ma and Pa Kettle, Francis the Talking Mule, the Frankenstein-Dracula-Mummy horror films, Sherlock Holmes, etc. Paramount had the Hope-Crosby-Lamour roads and Hopalong Cassidy, and Warners strung along with Torchy Blane and Philo Vance.

ATTENTION TAXPAYERS OF NEW MADRID COUNTY

Regarding your personal property taxes for 1966. If you note an increase over last year, it is probably due to the recommendation of The State Tax Commission at Jefferson City, that all motor vehicles be assessed at a higher rate. Their assessment schedule increased the valuation on some models as much as 100 per cent. However if you have any questions please contact me.

HEARING

A. Not per se, no, sir, but if they sell beer without a license, yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Potashnick, are you a member of the Sikeston Country Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever attended any functions at the Sikeston Country Club?

A. Yes, sir, I have. Mr. Potashnick: Your Honor, are we going to continue this line of questioning?

THE COURT: If you want to object to it --

MR. POTASHNICK: I object to it, being immaterial.

THE COURT: Sustained.

DEFENDANT'S ATTORNEY: I would like to make an offer of proof.

THE COURT: We are talking about one particular situation now. It is not a comparative situation or what somebody else is doing. As I understand, this is directed to this one group of defendants.

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEY: Yes, sir, that is true, but now the Prosecutor has stated that in his opinion that his act was lawless in this regard and I want to ask him about other acts that he has seen.

THE COURT: You mean to qualify him?

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEY: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: I don't believe --

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEY: I think he has got to tell the Court what was it about this act that makes it lawless when other acts just exactly like it were not lawless.

THE COURT: The objection will be sustained. You can make whatever offer you want.

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEY: My next question was whether or not Mr. Potashnick had ever been on the premises of the Sikeston Country Club and observed the sales of intoxicating liquors and purchased them himself.

THE COURT: The objection will be sustained.

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEY: I suspect his answer to that question would be "yes".

THE COURT: We have just got one situation under the jurisdiction of the court at this time.

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEY: Well, can I continue with my offer of proof here and show what I expected to ask and what I expected the answers to be?

THE COURT: Surely.

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEY: I then expected to ask Mr. Potashnick in what manner the person he claims to have seen selling intoxicating beverages at Jimmerson's establishment differed in any respects from the person he saw sell intoxicating liquors at the Sikeston Country Club. I expected his answer to that to be "none". I might say that I expected to ask the same questions and elicit the same answers exactly in the case of the Chaffee Elks Club and the Sikeston American Legion and the Morley V. F. W. If you want me to --

THE COURT: Put it in the record.

DEFENDANTS ATTORNEY: I expected to ask Mr. Fielding Potashnick if he had ever been upon the premises of the Chaffee Elks Club and had then and there observed the sale of intoxicating liquors. I expected his answer to be "yes". I expected then to ask Mr. Potashnick how and in what manner the person selling said intoxicants differed in any way from that person he alleges sold intoxicants at Jimmerson's tavern and I expected the answer to be "none". I was then going to ask Mr. Potashnick this question concerning the Sikeston American Legion Club: Mr. Potashnick, have you ever been upon the premises of the Sikeston American Legion Club and observed the sale of intoxicating liquors? I did not know what to expect in the way of Mr. Potashnick's answer in that establishment.

THE COURT: The offer will be denied.

THE COURT: I will take this motion under advisement. We will reset the hearing on this motion to show cause at a date we can get to just as soon as we can.

BOEING

TRIP WITH RE PORTERS

Mr. Wilson strikes visitors as more relaxed and more personable than Mr. Allen, who often seems wary and reserved when talking with casual acquaintances. One illustration of Mr. Wilson's ability to put people at ease occurred in late 1962 when Boeing sponsored a trip for reporters from Seattle to Great Falls, Mont., to view progress at a Minuteman assembly facility.

The executive forsook the comforts of the company plane to ride in an aging, Air Force C47 carrying a full load of reporters. A few minutes after take-off he was embroiled in a fast-paced poker game with the newspapermen. Mr. Wilson, who isn't known as a good poker player, lost money in the game.

The executive is best known within Boeing for his stewardship of the Minuteman ICBM program, of which Boeing is a leading contractor. He was named Minuteman program manager in 1958, and directed the program until mid-1964. He was named a vice president and manager of the Boeing aerospace division's missile branch in October 1962.

Air Force Major General Samuel C. Philips, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's project Apollo, who worked closely with Mr. Wilson in the Minuteman program, terms the Boeing executive "a brilliant engineer and an outstanding manager. Wilson was personally responsible for solving several very serious launch control problems" that cropped up during the Minuteman development in early 1962, the officer recalls.

Mr. Wilson holds a B.S. degree from Iowa State University and an MS in aeronautical engineering from California Institute of Technology. In 1952 he was a Sloan Fellow in industrial management at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

SWIMMING AWARDS

Of medium height and husky build, the slightly baldish Mr. Wilson is described by an associate as "an athletic type who looks like he hasn't worked out in a while." In fact, Mr. Wilson won several awards on his Iowa State swimming team and still swims often with his family at a privately run neighborhood swimming pool. He golfs on rare occasions. Recently, when playing with some Air Force dignitaries, he used only a two-iron, a five-iron and a putter but managed to shoot in the 90s.

Friends and associates call Mr. Wilson by his lifelong nickname, "T". His full name is Thornton Arnold Wilson, but the Thornton was shortened to "T" by his father, who had the same name, after a falling out with the Thornton side of the family.

Mr. Wilson lives with his wife, Grace, and their three children, (a boy 15, a boy 12 and a girl 8) in an eight-room one story home in southwestern Seattle suburb. Beekeeping is the executive's favorite hobby; he keeps five hives on his 1-3/4 acre property and often comes to work sporting several bee stings. A few years ago, the Wilson's also had a goat, four ducks and three geese ("we needed the geese to take care of the ducks which were sort of belligerent," recalls Mrs. Wilson, who admits she's more the animal-lover than he is.) Currently, the family has only a dog, a cat and a bird.

WASHINGTON AP -- Labor Department approval of a $269,000 Neighborhood Youth Corps project sponsored by the Delta Area Economic Corp., Portageville, Mo., was announced today.

The government will provide $239,600 for a job training project for 465 youths, Missouri members of Congress announced.

Martin Van Buren was the first U.S. president to be born in the United States.

Sterling Price Reynolds

S. P. Reynolds Observes 105th Birthday

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Sterling Price Reynolds, the veteran Mississippi River engineer and pioneer in Southeast Missouri drainage work, Wednesday observed his 105th birthday in a celebration in his room at Pemiscot Memorial Hospital at Hayti. A birthday cake and visits from his family and friends highlighted the day.

Reynolds has resided at the hospital since he neared his 101st birthday in 1962. His health is good and he recognizes his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Crews Reynolds; a niece, Miss Mary Crews Joplin, and his doctor and nurses, but cannot use names with certainty.

Many citations have come to the elderly river engineer in the 70 years of his career for progressive river and flood control projects in southeast Missouri. Among the tributes are those from the chief of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and other national figures.

Reynolds is a member of the original board of the Little River Drainage District and has served continusously since its formation. He is the oldest living graduate of the University of Missouri where he received his engineering degree.

On his 100th birthday on Nov. 9, 1961, the Sterling Price Park on the river front here was dedicated in his honor. New highway signs, "S. P. Reynolds Mississippi River Fishing Access," were recently erected by the Missouri State Conservation Department as a tribute to the engineer.

The signs lead from U.S. Highway 55 or 61 and State Highway 84 over a route which ends at the river dock recently built to accomodate pleasure boats and small craft.

S. P. Reynolds Observes 105th Birthday

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Sterling Price Reynolds, the veteran Mississippi River engineer and pioneer in Southeast Missouri drainage work, Wednesday observed his 105th birthday in a celebration in his room at Pemiscot Memorial Hospital at Hayti. A birthday cake and visits from his family and friends highlighted the day.

Reynolds has resided at the hospital since he neared his 101st birthday in 1962. His health is good and he recognizes his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Crews Reynolds; a niece, Miss Mary Crews Joplin, and his doctor and nurses, but cannot use names with certainty.

Many citations have come to the elderly river engineer in the 70 years of his career for progressive river and flood control projects in southeast Missouri. Among the tributes are those from the chief of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and other national figures.

Reynolds is a member of the original board of the Little River Drainage District and has served continusously since its formation. He is the oldest living graduate of the University of Missouri where he received his engineering degree.

On his 100th birthday on Nov. 9, 1961, the Sterling Price Park on the river front here was dedicated in his honor. New highway signs, "S. P. Reynolds Mississippi River Fishing Access," were recently erected by the Missouri State Conservation Department as a tribute to the engineer.

The signs lead from U.S. Highway 55 or 61 and State Highway 84 over a route which ends at the river dock recently built to accomodate pleasure boats and small craft.
